Notes from the Chair

Hello everyone and welcome to our summer 2014 newsletter for the CJDD. I hope that you are enjoying a relaxing and professionally fulfilling summer. In this issue of the newsletter, we have summarized the CJDD sessions for you. In addition, we highlight our major award winners for 2014. Please plan to attend the award session to honor Dr. Richard Leo, our CJDD Lifetime Achievement award winner, while at the meetings. Also, while at the meeting, make sure you attend our divisions business meeting. It is impressive how much of the work of the division is done during this meeting. We will select our session topics for the annual meeting. We will appoint committees for our student paper competition and our lifetime achievement award. We will discuss nominees for our next election of Chair Elect and Associate

Chair. Make sure you attend and get involved in the work of the division. Also, while you are at the meetings, please join me in thanking Kristen Budd- our amazing Associate Chair, Colleen Hackett - our newsletter editor, the many individuals who organized sessions this year, and Kristen Budd and Glenn Muschert who chaired our award committees. Finally, I want to thank all of you who help make the division work by attending sessions, presenting your work at sessions, and for your general interest in the CJDD. I am so privileged to work for you. As always, please do not hesitate to contact any of us if you have ideas about the Division.

Best wishes,

Brent

Division Award Recipients

We are very pleased to announce that Richard A. Leo has been selected to receive the 2014 Lifetime Achievement Award from the Division on Crime and Juvenile Justice. Richard A. Leo (Ph.D., J.D.) is professor and Dean's Circle Research Scholar at the University of San Francisco School of Law, and a Fellow in the Institute for Legal Research at UC Berkeley School of Law. He was previously a tenured professor of psychology and criminology at UC Irvine (1997-2006), and a professor of sociology and adjunct professor of law at the University of Colorado, Boulder (1994-1997). He recently served as visiting professor at UCLA School of Law (2013-2014). Richard is widely recognized for his pioneering empirical research on police interrogation practices, the impact of Miranda, psychological coercion, false confessions, and wrongful convictions. He has authored more than 80 articles in leading legal and social science journals as well as several books, including the multiple award-winning Police Interrogation and American Justice (Harvard University Press, 2008); The Wrong Guys: Murder, False Confessions and the Norfolk Four (with Tom Wells) (The New Press, 2008); and, most recently, Confessions of Guilt: From Torture to Miranda and Beyond (with George C. Thomas III) (Oxford University Press, 2012). He is currently working on a book that is tentatively entitled, The Innocence Revolution: A Popular History of the American Discovery of the Wrongly Convicted. His publications have been translated into Chinese, Japanese and Korean.

Richard has won numerous individual and career achievement awards for research excellence and distinction, including major academic awards from the ACJS, ASA, SSSP, and APA. He has been the recipient of Soros and Guggenheim fellowships, as well as a Fellowship from the Center for the Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University. In 2011 he was elected to the American Law Institute. According to the University of Chicago Leiter rankings, Richard Leo is one of the most cited criminal law and procedure professors in the United States. Richard has been featured and/or quoted in hundreds of stories in the national print and electronic media, and his research has been cited by numerous appellate courts, including the United States Supreme Court on multiple occasions. He is regularly invited to lecture and present training sessions to lawyers, judges, police, forensic psychologists and other criminal justice professionals. Richard is also often called to advise and assist practicing attorneys and has served as a litigation consultant and/or expert witness in numerous criminal and civil cases, including the cases of Michael Crowe, Earl Washington, Kerry Max Cook, Medell Banks, the Beatrice Six, Jessie Misskelley, Jr. of the West Memphis 3, and two of the Central Park jogger defendants. The extensive work Richard did to help free four innocent prisoners in Virginia (known as the “Norfolk 4”) was the subject of a story in The New Yorker magazine in 2009 and a PBS Frontline documentary in 2010.

We are very pleased to announce that Liam Martin, a Ph.D. student in Sociology at Boston College, has been selected to receive the Crime and Juvenile Delinquency Division Award for Best Graduate Student Paper. His paper, “How Prisons Create Crime: Prisonization and Bourdieu's Theory of Practice”, was unanimously selected by the committee. Liam is also the first CJDD graduate student to have back-to-back wins. He was selected as the division's graduate student paper winner in 2013. We would like to extend our utmost congratulations to Liam. Keep up the great work!

The Division award session (included in the session schedule below) will involve a panel discussion of the distinguished scholarship of Richard A. Leo, and the presentation of award plaques to both award recipients. The award sessions are informative and pleasant experiences, so please feel free to attend even if you're not familiar with the award recipients. The award session and panel discussion will take place on Saturday, August 16th, 12:30-2:10pm in the Mission Grille - Hotel Restaurant.

We hope to see you there!

A GENERAL NOTE ON PRESENTATION TIMING

In most cases presenters will hear directly from session organizers, but in the absence of guidance to the contrary, please prepare to deliver papers of 15 minutes length (standard session) or 5 minutes length (Critical Dialogues session). The Critical Dialogues sessions should feature eight five-minute presentations and greater time for dialogue between presenters and the audience. Unless the number of presenters is under the prescribed number (which happens with some frequency), additional time may not be possible, or if it is tolerated, it may come at the expense of other participants or and/or audience participation. Audience members - please know that your time and attention to mutual interests are very much appreciated, and that it is often possible to contribute to discussion; please make a point of attending some sessions and contributing with questions or comments.

Cancellations and Late Opportunities for Conference Presentations

As we head to print, there are three known open slots in division-sponsored sessions, and possibly more that we haven't heard of yet. Please contact Brent Teasdale (bteasdale@gsu.edu) at your earliest convenience if you have yet to inform SSSP of a cancellation. If you are potentially interested in presenting during one of the open slots, please contact Kristy Artello at kartello@vcu.edu. Two available openings are for five minute presentations (Critical Dialogue Format) contributing to the session theme of "High Profile Events, Media and Cultural Shifts Leading to Policy Responses" (Session # 51, Friday, Aug. 15, 4:30-6:10pm). One available opening is for a standard paper presentation contributing to the session theme of "Medicalization of Deviance and Juvenile Delinquency" (Session # 113, Sunday, Aug. 17, 8:30-10:10am). Thank you for your consideration.

Member News and Accomplishments

Michael Adorjan, has a newly published co-authored book (2014) with Wing Hong Chui entitled "Responding to Youth Crime in Hong Kong: Penal Elitism, Legitimacy and Citizenship" (New York: Routledge). This book examines reactions and policy responses to youth delinquency and crime in Hong Kong during its colonial and post-colonial periods, and in doing so, underscores the history of Hong Kong itself and its present-day circumstances. Exploring how officials have responded to youth crime in Hong Kong over time, this book tracks the emergence of a penal elitist mode of governance, highlighting concerns not only about young people's behavior but the need for officials to establish state authority and promote citizen identification. Michael Adorjan has also recently taken a position with the University of Calgary as an Assistant Professor after spending three years with the University of Hong Kong.

Bill McCarthy, of the University of California, Davis, and Rosemary Gartner from the University of Toronto have recently had their edited book “The Oxford Handbook of Gender, Sex, and Crime,” published with the Oxford University Press (2014). This book focuses on the relationship between gender, sex, and crime, providing an up-to-date and comprehensive take on this important field in criminology, criminal justice, and the social sciences generally. The authors have assembled a diverse cast of criminologists, historians, legal scholars, psychologists, and sociologists from a number of countries to discuss key concepts and debates central to the field.

Randol Contreras, of the University of Toronto, was awarded the 2013 UC Press Exceptional First Book Award for his book, “The Stickup Kids: Race, Drugs, Violence, and the American Dream” (University of California Press, 2013). He received the honor at the 23rd Annual Literary Award Festival, hosted by PEN Center USA. In his recently released book, Dr. Randol Contreras examines the lives of Dominican Stickup Kids, or drug robbers, in a South Bronx neighborhood. The research covers over a decade of fieldwork, where he hung out with men who brutally robbed drug dealers storing large amounts of heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and cash. Through rich field data and theory, Contreras examines a drug robbery’s organization and violence; the emotional and gendered aspects of torture; and how the relentless pursuit of the American Dream led these men to growing violence and eventual self-destruction. In all, The Stickup Kids urges readers to explore the ravages of the drug trade while masterfully uncovering the hidden social forces that produce violent and self-destructive individuals.

Lois Presser, Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Tennessee, published Why We Harm with Rutgers University Press (2013). Her, Presser illuminates the cultural grounds for actions that cause injury or destruction to other people, nonhuman animals, and the natural environment. Dr. Presser scrutinizes accounts of acts as diverse as genocide, environmental degradation, war, torture, terrorism, homicide, rape, and meat-eating in order to develop an original theoretical framework with which to consider harmful actions and their causes. In doing so, this timely book presents a general theory of harm, revealing the commonalities between actions that impose suffering and cause destruction.

Kristen Budd, our Associate Chair of the Division on Crime and Juvenile Delinquency, has recently accepted a position with the Department of Sociology and Gerontology at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio as an Assistant Professor! She was formerly an assistant professor with the Department of Criminal Justice at Indiana University, South Bend.

Guðmundur “Gummi” Oddsson, who received his Ph.D. from the University of Missouri, has recently accepted a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Northern Michigan.

Joachim Savelsberg has recently had three articles published earlier this year. First, his co-authored piece with Meghan Zacher and Hollie Nyseth Brehm entitled “NGOs, IOs, and the ICC: Diagnosing and Framing Darfur” was published in Sociological Forum (Vol. 29, No. 2.). He also had two solo-authored articles published in the Encyclopedia for Criminology and Criminal Justice, edited by Gerben Bruinsma and David Weisburd. The first is entitled “Human Rights Violations in Criminal Courts” and the second is entitled “Institutional and Historical Explanations of Criminal Punishment.”
