Let’s face it, what we do is often depressing. The very name of our organization, The Society for the Study of Social Problems, is a downer! We spend a great deal of our time and energy gaining and sharing knowledge about discrimination, dysfunction, and destruction. Through our work, we seek to communicate the consequences of the injustices we examine and how current conditions might be changed for the better (and how to prevent problems in the first place). As participants in social-change-seeking activities or in social service work, we deal with the tenacity of oppressive institutionalized power dynamics. Typically, we don’t have the power, ourselves, to eliminate the problems we illuminate. Unfortunately, our solutions are often difficult to actualize because they are based on theoretical approaches (feminist, anti-racist, socialist, and queer, to name a few) that are viewed with scepticism in mainstream culture because they are antithetical to the pernicious systems we work against. And, to make matters all that much more frustrating, we, ourselves, may perpetuate many of the same inegalitarian power dynamics we deplore and resist elsewhere – in our own workplaces, homes, and organizations. All of this is depressing.

But we are not ourselves depressed – not particularly as individuals, and certainly not as a group. Each year we come together, focus our efforts on systems of interwoven social problems, enjoy each other’s company, learn and grow together. We are imaginative and innovative. Being together allows us to learn from and build on each other’s creativities.

This year, let us celebrate a crucial part of what initially brought the SSSP into existence in 1951: the art of activism. By focusing on the myriad intersections between art and activism, I mean to encourage the sharing of work that explores the creative spirit in activism as well as the sociopolitical power of art.

Art and activism are both situational, relying always on history, context, and interpretation for their meaning. Howard S. Becker presents a view of art as the result of patterned, coordinated, ever-changing social interaction, rather than inherent in or emergent from idiosyncratic genius or talent. The meaning of art, thus, cannot be limited to aesthetic or meritocratic considerations, which also result from social interactions. Becker’s approach also applies to activist and academic endeavors. Through our organizing, scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and community service, we are participant-observers in a variety of forms of activism and of artistry.

Art and activism both:

Emerge out of creative, passionate impulses;

Involve transgression, challenging conventions, and making meaning in ways that are emotionally evocative and intellectually provocative;

Have the potential to transform worldviews, social practices, and power dynamics;

Have the ability to impel momentous connections between the many people who rail against multiple machines in pursuit of a variety of forms of social justice.

Let us consider art and activism – and our role as practitioners in both cultural arenas.

Welcome to Denver, the Mile-High City

Denver last hosted the SSSP meetings in 1971 and much has changed since that time. Once considered a dusty, frontier town serving as the western hub of mining activity in the mid 1800s, the metropolitan area has transformed as a result of several social, economic, and political changes. The Denver metro area is now home to over 3 million people and boasts several historic and racially/ethnically diverse neighborhoods, each adding to the city’s character. In terms of historical significance, Denver played a prominent role in the Chicano Movement in the 1960s, having served as the site for the Crusade for Justice. The city’s social justice and activist bent is also evidenced by the multitude of nonprofit and social justice organizations addressing issues ranging from immigrant rights, homelessness and poverty, school reform, mentoring and art programs in lower income neighborhoods, reproductive justice, GLBT issues, and other progressive causes. As far as the economy, significant activity has taken place in the areas of green technology and renewable energy initiatives, creative enterprises, and IT and telecommunications. More recently, Denver gained national attention by becoming the first major U.S. city to pass an ordinance allowing the sale of medical marijuana, leading to a proliferation of dispensaries around town. And Denver—and Colorado more broadly—is gaining a national reputation for being an important site for politics after hosting the 2008 Democratic National Convention where Barack Obama accepted his party’s nomination. Moreover, my university, the University of Denver, will host the first of 3 presidential debates in October 2012.

Of course, with these changes come growing pains, and Denver is dealing with its fair share of social problems brought about by demographic shifts, the downturn in the economy, and policies that are antithetical to social justice efforts. A series of federal, state, and local level initiatives, including Secure Communities, have made Colorado less than hospitable to immigrant communities. Denver was also one of several Colorado cities where the number of foreclosures was higher than the national average. Despite efforts by nonprofits to assist the homeless, local officials have proposed an initiative that would make it illegal for people to camp overnight on 16th Street Mall, a business district not far from the Grand Hyatt Denver. Finally, community revitalization and gentrification projects in some of Denver’s oldest neighborhoods—including Five Points, one of the stops on the group tour—have brought unwelcome changes for longstanding residents who can no longer afford rising rents.

Still, there are many points of interest that will appeal to sociologists, activists, artists, history buffs, and outdoor enthusiasts alike. The area around the Grand Hyatt offers a variety of coffee shops, restaurants, and retail shops. The 16th Street Mall is a pedestrian mall offering a range of dining and shopping options ranging from famous-name clothing stores to smaller, funkier shops and kiosks. A fleet of free shuttles transports shoppers to various stops along 16th Street and ends at Union Station, an historic building and spot for accessing the Light Rail. Although points along 16th Street will be a part of the city tour, it makes for a pleasant evening stroll to higher-end restaurants along Larimer Square (Larimer runs perpendicular to 16th Street) or, further down, Tattered Cover, an independently owned book store and downtown treasure. Beyond Union Station are Commons Park, Confluence Park, and the Platte River, perfect for some down time. Beyond the parks lies the Highland Bridge, a pedestrian bridge over I-25 that connects LoDo (lower downtown) to the historic Highland neighborhood. Highland offers additional dining options, including Mexican restaurants such as Lola, Rosa Linda’s Mexican Café, and Chile Verde. Also in Highland is Little Man’s Ice Cream, an ice cream shop known for its unique flavors and generous servings, making it worth the walk (look for the 28-foot-tall milk can). Further north is the Comfort Café, a not-for-profit restaurant where the cost of meals is based on what patrons can afford to pay.

For those more interested in learning about Denver’s culture and history, the following museums are within walking distance from the Grand Hyatt Denver or accessible via taxi or Light Rail. Check out the Denver Art Museum, a 20-25 minute walk from the Grand Hyatt Denver or the nearby History Colorado Center. Also nearby on the south side of the state capitol building is the Molly Brown House Museum and the Denver Mint (tours are free but require reservations). Another option is the Black American West Museum located in the Five Points neighborhood. The Arts District on Santa Fe, home to several art galleries including Museo de las Americas and the Chicano Humanities and Arts Council, among many others, is close to downtown as well.

No visit to Colorado would be complete without taking advantage of our state’s natural beauty, so those with extra time (and a vehicle) should visit Red Rocks Park and Amphitheater (15 miles west of Denver). Garden of the Gods and Pike’s Peak in Colorado Springs (65 miles south of Denver) offer a host of hiking opportunities. Pike’s Peak—the inspiration behind Katharine Lee Bates’ “For purple mountain majesties” line in “America the Beautiful”—is accessible via the Cog Railway for those not yet ready to climb their first “fourteener.” The beautiful Rocky Mountain National Park is within a 1.5 hour drive from Denver. For those short on time but who still want to get outdoors, consider Boulder (30 miles west of Denver; visit www.visitingboulder.com/hiking-in-boulder.php for more information) where hikers can choose from among a number of trails. For spectacular views of the mountains that constitute the Front Range, consider taking the highest paved road in North America to Mount Evans (60 miles west of Denver). At 14,625 feet, Mount Evans is one of the tallest fourteeners in Colorado. Temperatures can be as much as 30 degrees cooler than in Denver, so dress warmly (jacket, pants, etc.) and drink plenty of water to ward off altitude sickness. On the drive up, keep an eye open for wildlife such as elk, mountain goats, marmots, and bighorn sheep.

For those who will be visiting Denver with their families in tow, the Children’s Museum and the Denver Aquarium are good options as both are located downtown within a short taxi ride. The Denver Museum of Nature and Science is within a short drive from downtown near City Park and offers summer day camps for children. Another option within short driving distance is the Denver Botanic Gardens.

Finally, given this year’s theme, “The Art of Activism,” stop by the murals at Denver International Airport by local, Chicano artist, Leo Tanguma. The murals, the source of numerous conspiracy theories, are located on the east and west ends of the Great Hall near the baggage claims.

For more information about attractions in and around Denver, visit www.denver.org/what-to-do. So, again, welcome! May you enjoy all that Denver and the Rockies have to offer.

Lisa M. Martinez
University of Denver
Chair, 2012 SSSP Local Arrangements Committee
Welcome to Denver, where everything you do or see will literally take your breath away!

Denver has many breathtaking features that will have this effect on you both in a positive and negative way. Utilizing the major route of our new, ever-expanding Light Rail transportation system, I would like to take you on a tour of Denver highlighting the opportunities created by this technologically savvy system and its unintended consequences on the communities along its major route.

We begin at the 10th and Osage stop. Before we board the train, let’s explore a few hidden treasures. Walking east on 10th street you’ll see The Buckhorn Exchange on the left. This is Denver’s oldest restaurant where you can feast on any type of game meat you can think of. As we come to Santa Fe Drive, you’ll see one of Denver’s newest treasures, the Santa Fe Arts District. This area was developed by a community development corporation and has become a hotspot in Denver. Santa Fe Drive is lined with artists and/or activists. For example, the Denver Art Society, a local nonprofit, has created Denver Public Arts Universities, which offer free K-12 arts education programs to kids in the surrounding area who have no/limited access in their neighborhood schools. The first school was placed in the Santa Fe Arts District, ironically because the surrounding schools have completely cut or reduced access to arts education due to severe budget cuts. On the first Friday of each month, the street is full of folks from the wider Denver community making their way through the district. The Santa Fe Arts District is continually developing and is becoming a desired place to live. Before the development of the arts district, the surrounding neighborhoods were predominantly low-income families. The area is now experiencing gentrification as wealthy businesspeople are flocking here, driving up market rates and pushing out longtime, lower-income families.

The next stop brings us to the Auraria Campus, home to three public colleges: Community College of Denver, Metro State College, and University of Colorado at Denver. The next stop is the Theatre District which hosts a number of plays and operas. If you go to the box office on a Tuesday morning one can purchase unsold, overflow tickets on upcoming shows for a reduced price. You will also see the Colorado Convention Center at this stop and the Big Blue Bear peeking in.

The next stop, at 16th and California, offers shops, restaurants, and entertainment galore. Heading east, one will find people from all walks of life including businesspeople, tourists, teenagers, and homeless people. This spot is home to many of Denver’s poorest people and families. There are several shelters on the periphery of the mall, but it is not uncommon to see folks camped out at night along 16th Street despite the city’s attempt to ban such activity.

Continuing east we arrive at the Civic Center station. A few blocks northeast is the Colorado state capitol. If you explore this area further, you will find the Denver Art Museum complex that takes up two city blocks. North of the state capitol is Colfax Avenue, the longest road in North America. It is home to Pizza Fusion, an enterprise owned by the Colorado Coalition for the Homeless. This pizza place is an environmentally sustainable restaurant that serves organic food, and is run by individuals in the transitional housing program. The housing is located above the establishment and all individuals work in the restaurant. Their focus is on helping people acquire transferrable skills for future employment. The food, atmosphere, and the people are great, and eating at the restaurant supports a worthy cause. There are other dining experiences on Colfax worth mentioning, such as Mataam Fez Moroccan restaurant and Habesha Ethiopian restaurant. If you don’t have a car, but still want to explore, Denver has a new bike sharing program where you can conveniently rent a bike. There are 120 bikes at 10 locations around the state capitol area. Now that we’re full, we’ll head back to the 16th and California stop and continue our tour.

The next stop is 18th and California. This is the stop we will use later to get back to the hotel. We won’t make a trip to it, but if you are interested in attending a Rockies game, the stadium is located within walking distance northwest of the stop. You can purchase “Rockpile” tickets, which are the lowest priced tickets in all of major league baseball. Other stops worth mentioning include the Pepsi Center station, which houses professional basketball (i.e., the Nuggets) and hockey games (i.e., the Avalanche). When not being used by one of the professional teams, the Pepsi Center hosts concerts and other forms of entertainment. Also at this stop is Elitch Gardens, a water and amusement park for your inner or actual child.

The next four stops comprise the “Welton Cultural District,” a mix of abandoned buildings, nightclubs, a barbershop, a top hat and cane store, and a fried chicken restaurant. It is also the site of a water commodification plant. The last stop of the tour at 30th and Downing reveals a change in scenery. Here lies the historic Five Points neighborhood, which offers a mix of small, single family homes occupied primarily by low-to-middle income African American families. Once a vibrant, culturally rich community, Five Points has undergone significant social transformations. The Black American West Museum remains a remnant of an earlier era before the Light Rail expanded into this community, making the location desirable due to its proximity to downtown Denver. Now, the area is experiencing gentrification as predominantly white, higher-income families are moving into the area bringing commercialization and raising market rates that are increasingly pushing out long-standing residents.

As the Light Rail continues to expand east and westward, there is concern that gentrification may continue to occur, further displacing low and moderate income families. Similarly, plans are in the works to expand the Light Rail into Sun Valley, one of the poorest and most socially isolated neighborhoods in Denver, located in the shadow of Invesco Field, Denver’s professional football stadium. Developers are busy staking out land and figuring out ways to make Sun Valley more appealing, which will surely displace long time inhabitants. While the Light Rail has the potential to be a great resource, especially for some of the most disadvantaged families, the concern among many is whether access to these opportunities will be equally distributed. Only time will tell, but, in the meantime, I encourage you to enjoy the Light Rail as a resource that will help you maneuver through the city during your visit. Still, I urge you to be critical of your surroundings in order to understand the unintended yet visible consequences redevelopment initiatives and the Light Rail system have created. Welcome and enjoy!

Denver Area Attractions

The days should be pleasantly warm and the evenings cool. Every local will tell you this, but be careful about drinking alcohol and, whatever else you do, be sure to drink plenty of water; the transition from sea level can be a challenge. Also, if you get out and about to explore, be sure to wear sunscreen.

The Grand Hyatt is located in the central business district; it will be packed with office workers during the week, but fairly quiet at night and on the weekend. If you’re willing to explore beyond the hotel, you’ll be richly rewarded.

Here are some things close to the hotel:

- The Colorado Rockies are in town during our conference at Coors Field. They take on the Milwaukee Brewers from August 13-15 and the Miami Marlins from August 16-19. The stadium is easily accessible from the hotel, and is a great place to see a ballgame, even if you’re not a baseball fan. Tickets range from $5-$75 per ticket, per game.
- The Civic Center Park and the Denver Museums are just a few blocks from the hotel. Within easy walking distance of the hotel are the Daniel Liebeskind-designed Art Museum, the Michael Graves-designed Public Library, the Colorado Historical Museum, and the State Capitol. All are great places to take kids.
- The 16th Street Pedestrian Mall runs between Civic Center and Lower Downtown (LoDo). A free shuttle runs the 16 block length of the mall and is a great way to get around. LoDo is the home to bars, restaurants and cafes. Particularly on weekend nights, it will be packed with people eating, drinking, and carrying on. Also home to an outpost of the Tattered Cover, one of the nation’s great independent bookstores.
- Just beyond the end of the 16th Street Shuttle is a string of parks along the Platte River. Confluence Park, at the West end of the parks is a great place to watch kayakers, get a coffee at the 100,000 square foot REI flagship store, or for kids to wade in the water.
- Denver has more than 850 miles of off-road bike and walking trails. The Cherry Creek Bike Path runs for miles from Confluence Park to the reservoir east of town. It’s a great place for a walk or a run along the creek, particularly on a hot day.

Farther Afield:

- Denver has a great network of public parks. Probably the two best are Washington Park (for running/biking/ picnicking) and City Park (home of the Denver Zoo, the fabulous Museum of Nature and Science, and a municipal golf course).
- The Denver Botanic Gardens has something for everyone from leisurely strolls through themed gardens to wildflower hikes to nature trails and a historical farm.
- The Downtown Aquarium and Children’s Museum are located just beyond Confluence Park.
- If you rent a car, a number of day trips are possible.
  - Rocky Mountain National Park. A chance to see moose, elk, big horn sheep or drive the highest paved road in North America through alpine tundra.
  - Boulder. A beautiful college town nestled into the Flatirons about 30 minutes from downtown. Great people-watching, hiking, and dining.
  - Hiking. The foothills west of town are filled with hikes that range from easy to challenging.

PART II. Annual Meeting Events

Welcoming Reception–Open to SSSP Members

All meeting registrants are invited to the Welcoming Reception on Wednesday, August 15, to celebrate the opening of the 62nd Annual Meeting. This social hour kicks off at 6:00pm (room: Mt. Oxford) and provides opportunities to renew past acquaintances, chat with old friends, and find a newcomer to befriend. New members and first-time meeting attendees are particularly encouraged to attend.

New Member Breakfast

On Thursday, August 16 from 7:15am–8:15am (room: Mt. Sopris), established SSSP members will host a continental breakfast, greeting, welcoming, and networking with new members. Enter the room with a “New Member” or “Host” ribbon on your SSSP name badge.

Graduate Student Meeting with the Student Board Representatives

Student Board Representatives Mandy Frake-Mistak and Patrick K. O’Brien would like to meet with all graduate students on Thursday, August 16 from 8:30am–10:00am (room: Maroon Peak). This will be an excellent opportunity for students to mingle and discuss any issues. The Graduate Student Happy Hour is scheduled later in the day from 10:00pm–11:00pm (location: Pub 17-Hotel Bar). Complimentary drinks will be provided.

Accessibility Committee Informational Meeting

Plan to attend an informational meeting chaired by Cary Gabriel Costello for those interested in or with concerns about the inclusion of people with disabilities in SSSP on Thursday, August 16 from 2:30pm–4:10pm (room: Mt. Yale).

Open Discussion of Resolutions Being Proposed to the SSSP Board of Directors

Plan to attend the open forum of discussion where resolutions will be presented for discussion among concerned members on Thursday, August 16 from 2:30pm–4:10pm (room: Maroon Peak). All Division Chairs should plan to participate in this session or designate a proxy from their division if unable to attend.

At the annual business meeting, the resolutions will be presented by Vice-President Wendy L. Chapkis as a package for approval for action by the attending membership. The membership will vote on proposed resolutions that were discussed and revised on the first day of the meeting. If objections from the floor are raised to any specific resolution, that resolution can, by majority vote of those present, be singled out from the package, and voted on separately. Those present can either support the resolution for approval as proposed or decide to table the resolution for further discussion at the subsequent annual meeting.

Denver City Walking Tour

Tickets are still available for the Walking Tour of 16th Street and Five Points Neighborhood (limit 50): Saturday, August 18, 3:00pm–5:30pm, tickets $20 each. A limited number of tickets will be sold in the registration area. Those with advance reservations will receive their ticket(s) with their name badge.

This tour will focus on urban renewal, downtown reinvestment, and gentrification in two Denver neighborhoods. The tour will start at the D&F clock tower at 16th Street and Arapahoe where participants will see a blending of old and new architecture that has transformed this area. On the way to the Light Rail stop on California Street, participants will see examples of buildings (mostly old banks) that have been turned into hotels and department stores as a way to lure commerce back downtown. Participants will then make their way to Five Points via Light Rail. After a short break at an area coffee shop (cost borne by participant), the tour will go through Five Points, one of Denver’s oldest neighborhoods. Once known as the Harlem of the West because it attracted some of the most celebrated jazz musicians of the 20th century, the changes taking place in Five Points provide several examples of the opportunities and challenges of urban renewal projects. The tour will leave promptly at 3:00pm from the lobby of the Grand Hyatt (lobby of the main tower). A representative from the Colorado Historical Society will serve as tour guide. The cost includes the tour as well as a round-trip Light Rail ticket to Five Points from downtown, which will be provided by the guide. Participants are encouraged to wear a hat and comfortable walking shoes and to bring a bottle of water.

INSTITUTIONAL ETHNOGRAPHY WORKSHOP
SUNDAY, AUGUST 19

8:30AM–5:30PM

GRAND HYATT DENVER HOTEL

Location: Atrium Tower–Hyatt Conference Center
Rooms: Mount Evans A and Mount Evans B

Institutional Ethnography Workshop–Final Program

A day long institutional ethnography workshop is being held in conjunction with the SSSP meeting. The workshop is limited to 50 registrants and costs $100 for employed registrants and $70 for unemployed/activist/student registrants.

This workshop will be designed to support the thinking of IE researchers who are familiar with the method, who may be teaching IE and/or supporting graduate students to conduct IE research, and who may have encountered challenges in their own program of IE research. It is hoped that those new to IE will also gain something from the workshop design. Novice IE’ers are encouraged to register too. The workshop will be interactive. The morning is focused on doing IE analysis. How to do it. How to teach it. How it takes different forms in different projects. How does one write “analytic chunks”? How does one map for analysis? Marie Campbell is doing the core thinking for this session, but it will be interactive and others have agreed to share exemplars of their analytic processes. After lunch, Dorothy Smith will be talking about her new projects and current thinking. Later in the afternoon we are going to break into four streams. The focus of these streams has not been finalized and will be developed in response to participants’ ideas.

8:30am–12:00pm

Key organizer Marie Campbell with Alison Griffith

Learning Analysis: Seeing the Forest

Marie Campbell has noticed a particular kind of problem experienced by people who are learning to use the data they have collected within their new research projects. The excitement of collecting data may be followed by feeling stuck, not quite seeing what these data are all about. Marie finds it difficult to give people suggestions that work well enough to help them move on, with confidence, past this point; she may give examples and suggest things to read, but people characteristically have trouble figuring out the institutional ethnographic use of new data. Marie’s intent in the workshop is to explore this problem and think about how to make the (variously organized) world accessible and knowable. This might be described as learning how to see the forest and not just the trees.

To dig into the topic, Marie and Alison Griffith will guide several conversations with researchers who reflect on their practical experiences of generating an analysis: where they started, how they moved, what helped, etc. Alison will introduce her own use of a “Dialogue-data map-dialogue” process to help see “the forest”. All workshop participants are invited to reflect on and share their own similar and different experiences of working with new data, and to add questions, ideas and comments to the dialogue.

1:00pm–2:30pm

In discussion with Dorothy Smith and Susan Turner.

3:00pm–4:30pm

Small group sessions.

Up to four small groups–topics TBA. These will be convened around the expressed needs of the workshop participants to allow for more in depth discussion and consultation about research issues as they arise in specific IE projects.

4:30pm–5:30pm

Review the day. Plan for future workshops.

From award-winning documentary filmmaker Leslie Neale (Road to Return) comes this riveting look at a world most of us will never see: the world of juvenile offenders who are serving incredible prison sentences for crimes they either did not commit or were only marginally involved in. For two years, Neale taught a video production class at Los Angeles Central Juvenile Hall to 12 juveniles who were all being tried as adults. Juvies is the product of that class, which was a learning experience for both students and teacher—and becomes a learning experience for all of us, as we witness the heartbreaking stories of children abandoned by families and a system that has disintegrated into a kind of vending machine justice. Narrated by actor Mark Wahlberg, himself a former juvenile offender, Juvies follows the lives of a group of young people who will serve most, if not all, of their lives behind bars. The kids talk about the mistakes they made and what they would do if they had the chance to do things differently. They exhibit courage in the midst of the most despairing conditions. And they force us to ask, “Why is this happening? Why have we allowed it to happen? And what can we do now to change laws that are nothing less than draconian, that we as a citizenry have allowed to be enacted?” Interspersed with the kids’ stories are interviews with experts in juvenile justice and gangs, and with well-known faces, like former Los Angeles District Attorney Gil Garcetti, who, in an incredible scene, admits that sentences like the one Michael Duc Ta received—during Garcetti’s own tenure as D.A.—are unfair and should never have happened. What has gone wrong with our juvenile justice system? And can it be changed before more young lives are destroyed forever? Juvies offers no easy answers, but it will make you think long and hard about what democracy and justice really mean.

Filmed over nearly three years, Waste Land follows renowned artist Vik Muniz as he journeys from his home base in Brooklyn to his native Brazil and the world’s largest garbage dump, Jardim Gramacho, located on the outskirts of Rio de Janeiro. There he photographs an eclectic band of “catadores”—self-designated pickers of recyclable materials. Muniz’s initial objective was to “paint” the catadores with garbage. However, his collaboration with these inspiring characters as they recreate photographic images of themselves out of garbage reveals both the dignity and despair of the catadores as they begin to re-imagine their lives. Director Lucy Walker (DEVIL’S PLAYGROUND, BLINDSIGHT and COUNTDOWN TO ZERO) and co-directors João Jardim and Karen Harley have great access to the entire process and, in the end, offer stirring evidence of the transformative power of art and the alchemy of the human spirit.

2:30pm-4:10pm
Precious Knowledge, length: 70 minutes

Arizona lawmakers believe Tucson High School teachers are teaching victimization, racism, and revolution in their Ethnic Studies classes. Meanwhile Tucson Unified School District’s Mexican American Studies Department have data showing that almost 93% of their students, on average, graduate from high school and 82% attend college. The Dos Vatos Productions team filmed a year in the classroom to find out why the Mexican American Studies program is so popular with students, so misunderstood by the public, and discover what actually happens in the classroom. Precious Knowledge illustrates an epic civil rights battle as brave students and teachers battle with lawmakers and public opinion in an effort to keep their classes alive. From the Huffington Post: Rarely has a film been so timely and downright revelatory. Casting aside the inflammatory rhetoric and national headlines of the anti-ethnic-studies instigators, Precious Knowledge provides a clear-eyed portrayal of students, teachers and their community struggling to deal with the nation’s most unnerving campus witch hunt in recent memory. Tracing the political roots of the legislative ban -- and the program’s own mandate and success to alleviate the long-time achievement gaps among Latino students -- Precious Knowledge’s riveting pacing and compelling portraits will astonish, infuriate and inspire viewers. In truth, Precious Knowledge is the type of unique and powerful film that could ultimately shift public perception and policy on one of the most misunderstood education programs in the country. In a balanced but unabashedly passionate film directed by Ari Luis Palos and produced by Eren Isabel McGinnis, Precious Knowledge serves as a remarkable and seemingly more honest counter-argument to last year’s widely acclaimed Waiting for Superman, the documentary film on charter schools and the failure of public instruction. The stakes in Precious Knowledge are somehow even higher: We meet students who emerge as their own advocates to not only defend their right to a decent education, but their very existence and cultural heritage.

4:30pm-6:10pm
The Interrupters: http://interrupters.kartemquin.com/about, length 125 minutes

The Interrupters tells the moving and surprising stories of three Violence Interrupters who try to protect their Chicago communities from the violence they once employed. From acclaimed director Steve James and bestselling author Alex Kotlowitz, this film is an unusually intimate journey into the stubborn persistence of violence in our cities. Shot over the course of a year out of Kartemquin Films, The Interrupters captures a period in Chicago when it became a national symbol for the violence in our cities. During that period, the city was besieged by high-profile incidents, most notably the brutal beating of Derrion Albert, a Chicago High School student, whose death was caught on videotape. The film’s main subjects work for an innovative organization, CeaseFire. It was founded by an epidemiologist, Gary Slutkin, who believes that the spread of violence mimics the spread of infectious diseases, and so the treatment should be similar: go after the most infected, and stop the infection at its source. One of the cornerstones of the organization is the “Violence Interrupters” program, created by Tio Hardiman, who heads the program. The Interrupters — who have credibility on the streets because of their own personal histories — intervene in conflicts before they explode into violence.

The film exhibit is scheduled for Friday, August 17 (room: Mt. Yale). It is organized by Program Committee member Nancy Michaels, Roosevelt University.

Room: Mt. Princeton (GH)

Sponsors: Conflict, Social Action, and Change Program Committee

Organizer & Presider: Debbie Perkins, Coastal Carolina University

Description:

This historic moment is the context for critical pedagogy and raising consciousness essential to building a 21st century transformative movement. The situation in the U.S. and the world is one of irreversible crisis and collapse of global capitalism, ecological and social destruction, intensifying political attack and systemic oppression rooted in race/nationality, gender, and class. The corporate state has replaced the welfare state, and the threat of fascism, including repression and war, looms large. Resistance and struggle are breaking out in bottom-up social motion across continents, sectors, and fronts of struggle. From uprisings of the Indignados to North Africa and the Arab spring, to protests and strikes throughout Europe and Latin America, to the United States—from Wisconsin to Occupy Wall Street, to occupy everywhere—and the ongoing social forum and movement assembly processes globally and nationally. Movement development in this context is an urgent task. We reflect on how we—as grassroots and scholar activists and movement builders—enter into this process, connect students and campuses to today’s growing social struggle on the basis of equality. The leap in social development is creating the conditions for moving from spontaneity to consciousness, and for nurturing conscious leadership from all sections of society affected by the current moment, crisis, and destruction of society. Our participation within the mass movement takes up the work of going from spontaneity to consciousness—and from social consciousness to class consciousness. A critical next step is developing a counter-hegemonic mass education and consciousness raising project—understanding systemic root causes, visions, and engaging in daily practice to make all this happen. Mass political education is essential for creating clarity, direction and political independence of our growing movement. And in confronting our history of bourgeois and ruling class hegemony and ideology—capitalism, white supremacy and patriarchy—to move forward. We discuss the theory and praxis of political education and consciousness-raising as activism and movement building in today’s 21st century transformative struggle.

Session 50: Juvies
Room: Mt. Yale (GH)

Sponsor: Program Committee
Presider: Ricky J. Pope, Western Michigan University

Description:
http://www.juvies.net/index.php From award-winning documentary filmmaker Leslie Neale (Road to Return) comes this riveting look at a world most of us will never see: the world of juvenile offenders who are serving incredible prison sentences for crimes they either did not commit or were only marginally involved in. For two years, Neale taught a video production class at Los Angeles Central Juvenile Hall to 12 juveniles who were all being tried as adults. Juvies is the product of that class, which was a learning experience for both students and teacher—and becomes a learning experience for all of us, as we witness the heartbreaking stories of children abandoned by families and a system that has disintegrated into a kind of vending machine justice. Narrated by actor Mark Wahlberg, himself a former juvenile offender, Juvies follows the lives of a group of young people who will serve most, if not all, of their lives behind bars. The kids talk about the mistakes they made and what they would do if they had the chance to do things differently. They exhibit courage in the midst of the most despairing conditions. And they force us to ask, “Why is this happening? Why have we allowed it to happen? And what can we do now to change laws that are nothing less than draconian, that we as a citizenry have allowed to be enacted?” Interspersed with the kids’ stories are interviews with experts in juvenile justice and gangs, and with well-known faces, like former Los Angeles District Attorney Gil Garcetti, who, in an incredible scene, admits that sentences like the one Michael Duc Ta received—during Garcetti’s own tenure as D.A.—are unfair and should never have happened. What has gone wrong with our juvenile justice system? And can it be changed before more young lives are destroyed forever? Juvies offers no easy answers, but it will make you think long and hard about what democracy and justice really mean. (length: 66 minutes)

Session 62: Waste Land
Room: Mt. Yale (GH)
Sponsor: Program Committee
Presider: Joseph A. Astorino, Washington State University
Description:
http://www.wastelandmovie.com/synopsis.html Filmed over nearly three years, Waste Land follows renowned artist Vik Muniz as he journeys from his home base in Brooklyn to his native Brazil and the world’s largest garbage dump, Jardim Gramacho, located on the outskirts of Rio de Janeiro. There he photographs an eclectic band of “catadores”— self-designated pickers of recyclable materials. Muniz’s initial objective was to “paint” the catadores with garbage. However, his collaboration with these inspiring characters as they recreate photographic images of themselves out of garbage reveals both the dignity and despair of the catadores as they begin to re-imagine their lives. Director Lucy Walker (Devil’s Playground, Blindsight, and Countdown to Zero) and co-directors João Jardim and Karen Harley have great access to the entire process and, in the end, offer stirring evidence of the transformative power of art and the alchemy of the human spirit. (length: 99 minutes)

Arizona lawmakers believe Tucson High School teachers are teaching victimization, racism, and revolution in their Ethnic Studies classes. Meanwhile Tucson Unified School District’s Mexican American Studies Department have data showing that almost 93% of their students, on average, graduate from high school and 82% attend college. The Dos Vatos Productions team filmed a year in the classroom to find out why the Mexican American Studies program is so popular with students, so misunderstood by the public, and discover what actually happens in the classroom. Precious Knowledge illustrates an epic civil rights battle as brave students and teachers battle with lawmakers and public opinion in an effort to keep their classes alive. From the Huffington Post: Rarely has a film been so timely and downright revelatory. Casting aside the inflammatory rhetoric and national headlines of the anti-ethnic-studies instigators, Precious Knowledge provides a clear-eyed portrait of students, teachers and their community struggling to deal with the nation’s most unnerving campus witch hunt in recent history. Tracing the political roots of the legislative ban – and the program’s own mandate and success to alleviate the long-time achievement gaps among Latino students -- Precious Knowledge’s riveting pacing and compelling portraits will astonish, infuriate and inspire viewers. In truth, Precious Knowledge is the type of unique and powerful film that could ultimately shift public perception and policy on one of the most misunderstood education programs in the country. In a balanced but unabashedly passionate film directed by Ari Luis Palos and produced by Eren Isabel McGinnis, Precious Knowledge serves as a remarkable and seemingly more honest counter-argument to last year’s widely acclaimed Waiting for Superman, the documentary film on charter schools and the failure of public instruction. The stakes in Precious Knowledge are somehow even higher: We meet students who emerge as their own advocates to not only defend their right to a decent education, but their very existence and cultural heritage. Organizing for low-income, minority, immigrant, LGBT and youth oriented concerns, CPC battles corporate and moneyed interests that are actively working to maintain or increase systems of oppression affecting Colorado communities. In addition, CPC works to fight and shatter laws and perspectives that reflect racist, classist, homophobic, xenophobic, or sexist ideals that have been written into our society through years of systemic cultural inequity. Session 82: Meet the Authors of “The Art of Social Critique: Painting Mirrors of Social Life” edited by Shawn Bingham
Sponsor: Conflict, Social Action, and Change
Organizer & Presider: Shawn Bingham, University of South Florida
Description:
Artists have long made important contributions to public dialogue by using their work as a means of social critique and social change; yet they have often been attacked for doing so. This panel of authors will present on their edited collection that examines the interdisciplinary nature of imagination—artistic, sociological, historical, and psychological. The authors explore such questions as: Can the artistic imagination, sociological imagination, and political imagination inform each other? Are there relationships between imagination, creativity, perspective, experimentation, possibility, and “seeing”? And how might these aspects of the artistic eye relate to understanding or unveiling social life? Can the “artistic eye,” as a form of social inquiry, aid the artist in understanding the human condition? And, can it help the audience to attain a more complex understanding of social life?

Session 84: The Interrupters
Room: Mt. Yale (GH)
Sponsor: Program Committee
Presider: Jonel Thaller, Arizona State University
Description:
http://interrupters.kartemquin.com/about The Interrupters tells the moving and surprising stories of three Violence Interrupters who try to protect their Chicago communities from the violence they once employed. From acclaimed director Steve James and bestselling author Alex Kotlowitz, this film is an unusually intimate journey into the stubborn persistence of violence in our cities. Shot over the course of a year out of Kartemquin Films, The Interrupters captures a period in Chicago when it became a national symbol for the violence in our cities. During that period, the city was besieged by high-profile incidents, most notably the brutal beating of Derrion Albert, a Chicago High School student, whose death was caught on videotape. The film's main subjects work for an innovative organization, CeaseFire. It was founded by an epidemiologist, Gary Slutkin, who believes that the spread of violence mimics the spread of infectious diseases, and so the treatment should be similar: go after the most infected, and stop the infection at its source. One of the cornerstones of the organization is the “Violence Interrupters” program, created by Tio Hardiman, who heads the program. The Interrupters — who have credibility on the streets because of their own personal histories — intervene in conflicts before they explode into violence. (length: 125 minutes)

The question is not whether we should take sides, since we inevitably will, but rather whose side we are on.
Howard S. Becker, SSSP Presidential Address, 1966

However inadvertently, the societal reaction school purged the elemental dialectic of resistance from social life.
Francis Fox Piven, SSSP Presidential Address, 1980

How might we - as social scientists concerned with social justice - also reinscribe and, thereby, also partially subvert the networks of liquid CAPITAList power that engulf us daily?
Stephen J. Pfohl, SSSP Presidential Address, 1992

Sociologists and other social scientists must quickly seize the day. Our research and writings must move beyond criticizing new privatization. We must imagine alternatives.
Nancy C. Jurik, SSSP Presidential Address, 2003

As C. Wright Mills once wrote in a letter to E. P. Thompson: “I have to do it: it’s my god-damned duty, because nobody else will stand up and say shit out loud.” Scarcely six decades have passed since Mills’ iconic voice fell silent. But his spirit lives on in the SSSP and his insights have never been timelier. In 2013, the SSSP returns to New York City, the intellectual home of Mills and yes, to Wall Street, one of the pillars he identified of the power elite that “characterizes the structure of our epoch.”

The unprecedented global crisis that has unfolded since Mills was “saying his shit out loud” now demands that we re-imagine the way we understand the very nature of social problems. The sometimes subtle and always complex interrelationships between personal troubles, public issues and global dilemmas have become re-arranged as substantially as have the structures of the “power elite.” Problems rooted in the inadequacies of the Fordist welfare state were exacerbated by those based in the harsh realities of the neoliberal life-cycle. This neoliberal system now finds itself rife with contradictions in the search for a post-neoliberal mode of global capitalist expansion. Social movements all around the world have mounted resistance to this restructuring. Novel forms of protest like “Occupy Wall Street” help illustrate a broader trend towards transnationalized social movement mobilization. From the Arab Spring and the leftist upsurge in Latin America to the anti-austerity trade union and student movements stretching all across the global North, popular movements have engaged and impacted the structural path of global development. Right-wing “populism” and Islamic fundamentalism have also shaped the broader political landscape, putting forth conservative and reactionary platforms that pose as “solutions” to the everyday problems confronting poor and working people.

We might recall an important insight of our founders, Al and Betty Lee, that social scientists have too often been caught running behind the curve of social change. This thought was echoed by C.W. Mills in one of his earliest works where he was sharply critical of “social pathologists” whose social problems textbooks dealt “in a fragmentary way with scattered problems and were not focused on larger stratifications or upon structured whole... failing to consider whether or not certain groups or individuals caught in economically underprivileged situations can possibly obtain the current goals without drastic shifts in the basic institutions which channel and promote them.” This kind of structural, political economy approach put forward by Mills and further developed by Gouldner and many other critical sociologists spawned important contributions just as it questioned our own professional positioning as teachers, researchers and/or social practitioners. Meanwhile, social constructionist approaches emerged and developed in a parallel trajectory during the later decades of the 20th Century, offering their own powerful critiques of the sociological mainstream.

In the SSSP, a wealth of ground-breaking work has begun to accumulate that deepens our understanding of power relations, enriches social constructionism with social movement theory, and struggles in earnest to reunite fluid social processes with political economy. The challenge now before us is to push forward and preserve the critical leading edge of this theorizing as we move beyond our aging paradigms to actively engage and “subvert” the global structures of 21st Century capitalism.

As a collective project of scholar-activists, the SSSP is all about making real social change happen. In New York City, we invite participants to challenge established views and contemplate the limits of existing approaches to social problems, including those of social constructionism. To that end, we are organizing panels, thematic sessions, and special events to explore alternative and more advanced ways to confront the contemporary structures of globalized capitalism that so insidiously shape our social problems. All of this requires a revitalized sociological imagination. It requires of us a renewed emphasis on collective response and strategy to complement critical analysis. The historical moment demands that we as academics and social practitioners work in better tandem with social movements to help concretize emerging visions of another possible world.

Our task is a big one. We call on progressive analysts and social practitioners alike to join us in New York City to collectively re-imagine social problems in a space where you can “say it out loud.” The venue for the occasion could not possibly offer more food for thought. From Harlem to Wall Street, the Statue of Liberty to Ground Zero, Staten Island to the Bronx, Brooklyn to the Hudson River, Coney Island to the Village, Queens to el Barrio, Broadway to the United Nations, Central Park to Battery Park, it’s all in New York City. And all connected by one subway transport system that greets you at your hotel doorstep on Times Square!

So, be sure to pack your sociological imagination when you come to “occupy” your place in the Big Apple!
