On January 8, 1964, President Lyndon Johnson declared unconditional war on poverty in America – a time in our history when the voices of individuals like Homer Bigart, Michael Harrington, John and Robert Kennedy moved the collective American social conscience to action against one of our most entrenched social problems. Yet, we have ample evidence five decades later that suggests that not only is the war far from over, the outcomes of our anti-poverty policies and programs have been mixed. Indeed, critics from both sides of the political aisle would argue today that “poverty won” with nearly 50 million Americans (almost one out of four of them children) living in poverty as of 2013. Indeed, the 2013 UNICEF report card on child well-being identifies the United States as having the second highest child poverty rate among the world’s most affluent countries.

While the problem of poverty is not new, who constitutes the poor has changed dramatically since 1964. Today, fewer elderly citizens are poor while those of working age have increased dramatically, in part due to the influence of neoliberal policies on local, national, and global markets and the continued replacement of high-wage manufacturing jobs with low-wage service sector jobs. In the aftermath of the Great Recession, the ranks of the new poor have grown to encompass the college educated, former middle class workers, suburbanites, and homeowners. However, what has remained consistent throughout the years is that poverty and inequality are most pronounced among minorities and women.

Also changed since 1964 are the political and social contexts shaping our approaches to addressing poverty in America. As Martin Luther King Jr. asked 45 years ago, do we currently have the political and social will to end poverty? Today, the answer is emphatically “no.” The scholarly and policy discourse on poverty has receded almost to complete silence. Poverty was rarely mentioned during the 2012 Presidential campaigns with both parties directing their political rhetoric toward middle class America. Further, Rep. Marcia Fudge [D-Ohio], the chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, was quoted in a recent blog by Jennifer Bendery (2013) as depicting the Congressional record on poverty as ‘missing in action’.

In many ways I wonder whether we have evolved from an unconditional war on poverty to a seemingly unconditional war on the poor. As Saul Friedman noted in a 2010 blog reminiscing about the War on Poverty, there has been a consistent “bipartisan gnawing away at anti-poverty programs” since 1970s that has decimated the social safety net for millions of poor American families. Today, this safety net is at risk of further shredding by the federal sequester as well as the political gamesmanship targeting anti-poverty programs and scapegoating the poor. We again hear familiar rhetoric distinguishing between the deserving versus the undeserving poor; re-emphasizing individual failure over the failure of society as the primary reason for poverty. Moreover, despite nearly universal agreement amongst scholars and policymakers about viable remedies (e.g., job creation, asset building) as mechanisms to lift people out of poverty, we are currently living in a political and social milieu that lacks the political will to support this type of social action.

As we convene our 2014 meetings in San Francisco, we invite scholar-activists and practitioners to once again look critically at the issue of poverty in America and beyond, examining the successes, failures and limitations associated with 50 years of anti-poverty strategies with fresh eyes. We are organizing panels, critical dialogues, workshops, thematic sessions and special events to examine new ways of confronting poverty. As scholars in pursuit of a just society, what do we have to offer at this time in our history to address one of the most, if not the most, pressing social problems that we face locally, nationally and globally? Who amongst us, might emerge as the contemporary voices stirring the collective American conscience to social action?

Welcome to San Francisco, the City by the Bay!

Welcome to San Francisco, the City by the Bay. The only consolidated city-county in California, its geography spans seven square miles. Home to some 826,000 people, San Francisco is the fourth most populous city in California and the 14th most populous city in the United States. Founded in 1776, the infamous California Gold Rush of 1848 brought rapid growth, wealth, and settlers to the City known for its hilly terrain, fog, and diverse culture of immigrants. Whether you’re an academic, artist, an activist or an athlete, San Francisco has much to offer. To help you decide how you’d like to spend your time exploring the city, we’ve put together this guide, which includes some of San Francisco’s most well-known and a few more obscure attractions. The Marriott Marquis is centrally located, making any of these suggestions easy to access using public transit; several are located within a few blocks of the hotel.

Museums

Several identity-based museums are worth a visit and are easy to get to from the hotel. Located at 736 Mission Street (at 3rd), the Contemporary Jewish Museum presents contemporary perspectives and Jewish views on art, history, and culture. A few steps away is the Museum of the African Diaspora, with programs and exhibitions that feature the art, history, culture of Africa and of people of African descent worldwide. One of the largest Asian art collections in the Western world, the Asian Art Museum (200 Larkin Street, at McAllister) features more than 13,000 art objects spanning 6,000 years of history. The only museum of its kind in the U.S., the GLBT History Museum’s exhibits celebrate 100 years of SF’s gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender past (4127 18th Street, at Castro).

San Francisco has plenty to offer for fans of art or the unusual. A training ground for some of the country’s best new fine and commercial artists, the Academy of Art University has six exhibition galleries located throughout the city, including one located a few blocks from the Marriott Marquis at 79 New Montgomery Street. The Cartoon Art Museum (650 Mission Street, between 2nd & 3rd) is home to over 6,000 pieces of original and cartoon and animation art, a comprehensive research library, and five galleries of exhibition space. Animation enthusiasts may also want to visit the Walt Disney Family Museum (104 Montgomery Street, the Presidio) features innovative, interactive galleries that help visitors get to know Walt Disney through early drawings and animation, movies, music, and listening stations featuring his own voice. If you are interested in the odd and unusual, visit Ripley’s Believe It Or Not! Museum, inspired by the 1920s newspaper column “Believe It Or Not!” (175 Jefferson Street, at Mason).

If science is your thing, visit the Exploratorium, a 21st Century learning laboratory and interactive science museum, in its all-new facility on Pier 15. If you are more in the mood to enjoy marine life, visit the Aquarium of the Bay (Pier 39). Continue walking north along the Embarcadero and you will soon find yourself at the San Francisco Maritime National Park and near the USS Pampanito, an Authentic WWII submarine (Pier 45).

A good way to combine spending time outdoors with some art and science is to visit Golden Gate Park. You can meander through its vast open space (approximately three miles long and a half mile wide), and enjoy the grassy meadows, wooded bike trails, secluded lakes, open groves, and gardens without leaving the city. While you are there, you might want to visit a few of the park’s destination spots. The Conservatory of Flowers, built in 1879 and modeled after London’s Kew Gardens, is a glass Victorian displaying a paradise of flowers located near the eastern edge of the park. You might also check out the San Francisco Botanical Garden, which boasts 55 acres of beautiful gardens displaying over 8,000 different kinds of plants from around the world (9th Ave. & Lincoln Way). If you have not yet had your fill of flowers and gardens, visit the Japanese Tea Garden, a four-acre refuge of traditional Japanese architecture, koi ponds, and bamboo trees. You might also visit the Academy of Sciences - an aquarium, planetarium, natural history museum, and 4-story rainforest (55 Music Concourse) or the de Young Museum, which features 17th-21st century art from the Americas, the Pacific & Africa, international textiles and costumes (50 Hagiwara Tea Garden Drive).

Enjoy the Outdoors

Though Golden Gate Park may be the most well-known, San Francisco boasts several parks with hiking/biking trails, spectacular views, and historical relevance.

Known as the “Ellis Island of the West,” Angel Island houses an Immigration Station that served as a main immigration processing center from 1910-1940. A direct result of the passage of the Chinese Exclusion Act in 1882, the center detained hundreds of thousands of immigrants from all over the world from an average of two weeks while they endured interrogations, medical exams, and more. Take the ferry from Pier 41, visit the Immigration Station and then go for a hike, rent a bike, or enjoy a host of other outdoor activities.

For 218 years, the Presidio served as an army post for three nations (Spain, Mexico, U.S.), making it rich with historical landmarks and memorabilia. More than a landmark of military history, the Presidio boasts a complex natural history that still provides active, open space in San Francisco. With over 25 miles of hiking and 14 miles of paved and unpaved biking trails, a world-class board sailing and kite surfing area along Crissy Field, and an abundance of fishing and crabbing opportunities along the nearby rocks and pier; the Presidio has something for everyone. It even features great photo opportunities, with scenic views of the Bay Area and the Presidio’s historic architecture.

If you’re feeling like the Bay isn’t providing enough ocean air, take a trip to the Pacific Ocean and visit Ocean Beach, a 3.5-mile stretch of white beach on the westernmost border of San Francisco. Adjacent to Golden Gate Park, it’s a great place for strolling and flying kites, but the water is frigid with hazardous currents, so surfers beware. Walk uphill from Ocean Beach to Land’s End, where you may want to stop at the new Lookout Visitor Center to decide which of the spectacular trails you’ll hike along this wild and rocky northwestern corner of San Francisco.
where you’ll see hillsides of cypress and wildflowers, views of old shipwrecks, pocket beaches, and access to the epic ruins of Sutro Baths, once the world’s largest indoor swimming pool establishment.

Welcome to San Francisco: A Guide for Graduate Students
(and everyone else on a budget!)

Currently one of America’s most visited cities, San Francisco is home to many historical attractions and landmarks, some with spectacular views that you can enjoy without breaking the bank. Here we provide a few suggestions for exploring the city on a limited budget. The Marriott Marquis is centrally located, making any of these suggestions easy to access using public transit.

Begin your day with a short walk from the Marriott Marquis to the Powell/Hyde Street Cable Car turnaround at the intersection of Market and Powell Streets. More than a century after the cable car system’s creation for transportation, the trolleys operate today as more as a tourist attraction, and they’re worth the $6 fare. Exposed to the elements, the Powell/Hyde St. cable car navigates the hilly terrain of SF; sit outside and hold on tight! Cable car enthusiasts can jump off at Washington Street and walk one block to visit the free Cable Car Museum at 1201 Mason Street before continuing along to the cable car’s Ghirardelli Square destination. After walking through Ghirardelli and enjoying views of the Bay, visit the Buena Vista Café (2765 Hyde Street), known for their world-famous Irish Coffee. Warmed by the Irish Coffee, you may be ready for a walk of just under a mile, along Jefferson Street, that will take you past Fisherman’s Wharf and to Pier 39. Pier 39 is a 45-acre waterfront complex located adjacent to Fisherman’s Wharf. Known for its shopping and spectacular views of the Golden Gate Bridge, Bay Bridge, and Alcatraz, it is one of the most visited attractions in North America. And it’s a great place to see the sea lions.

If you prefer to get a feel for some of San Francisco’s historic neighborhoods, you might start with Chinatown. The largest outside of Asia and the oldest in North America, San Francisco’s Chinatown includes 24 blocks of markets and restaurants. Located about ½ mile from the Marriott Marquis, Dragon Gate (Grant Ave. & Bush Street) welcomes you to Chinatown. Walk along Grant Ave. for another ½ mile, until you get to Ross Alley, where you can visit the Golden Gate Fortune Cookie Factory. If you’ve got more time and energy, continue along Grant Ave. into North Beach, San Francisco’s historically Italian neighborhood and walk up the Filbert Steps to Coit Tower. Built in 1933, Coit Tower delivers stunning views of the City and the San Francisco Bay. Once you’ve caught your breath, head back through North Beach and up to Lombard Street, the most crooked street in the City. Perhaps best known for its scene in the movie Herbie the Love Bug, Lombard Street was built in 1922 and is positioned in the picturesque neighborhood of Russian Hill and features eight hairpin turns lined with flowered walkways.

For a different perspective on the city, spend an afternoon touring the Balmy Street Murals in the Mission District (take BART to 16th or 24th Street). Visit the Women’s Building, the first woman-owned and operated community center in the country, and experience its Mural MaestraPeace (3543 18th Street, at Valencia), a visual testament to the courageous contributions of women through time and around the world.

From there it’s a short walk to the Castro, one of the first gay neighborhoods in the United States. Having transformed from a working-class neighborhood through the 1960s and 1970s, the Castro remains one of the most prominent symbols of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender activism and events. From the Castro, head up to Twin Peaks for a birds-eye view of San Francisco. Then catch a bus to visit the pulsating point of the revolutionary 1960s -- Haight-Ashbury and Golden Gate Park. If you want to get out of the city and get a bit more exercise, enjoy walking or biking across the Golden Gate Bridge. Built in 1937, the bridge is 1.7 miles long and has been declared one of the wonders of the modern world by the American Society of Civil Engineers. Once you cross the bridge, continue along the Bay into Sausalito and enjoy the sights there before returning to San Francisco by ferry ($10), which will bring you to the renovated Ferry Building, known for its shops, restaurants, and tri-weekly farmer’s markets (Tues. & Thurs. 10am – 2pm; Sat. 8am – 2pm). If it’s dark, be sure to look for the light display on the Bay Bridge. The Bay Lights are the world’s largest LED light sculpture (25,000 white LED lights). Inspired by the Bay Bridge’s 75th Anniversary, the display features a never-repeating, dazzling display across the west span of the Bay.

Monday, August 18, 9:00am-6:30pm, Location: The San Francisco Marriott Marquis, No fee to attend this conference

From its inception as the Insurgent Sociologist, formed as a result of the social action of the “Sociology Liberation Movement” at the 1969 meetings of the American Sociological Association, Critical Sociology has been committed to publishing scholarship from Marxist, post-Marxist, Feminist, and other critical perspectives. It has published articles on a wide range of topics by scholars from North America, Latin America, Europe, and Asia, including Labor and the Labor Movement, Globalization and Work, Gender, Race and Critical Race Theory, and the Neoliberal Crisis.

The conference is dedicated to his work and memory, and will include two panels reflecting on Rod’s contributions to and impact on the struggle for revolutionary change and social justice. This conference will also include panels that reflect upon the impact Critical Sociology has had on these and other areas, and present current trends in critical sociological scholarship. It will provide the opportunity for an exchange between international scholars, activists, and anyone interested in progressive social change.

INSTITUTIONAL ETHNOGRAPHY WORKSHOP (limit 50):
Monday, August 18, 8:30am-5:00pm, Location: The San Francisco Marriott Marquis, $100 for employed registrants or $70 for unemployed/activist and student registrants

This workshop will be of interest to researchers who are using or planning to use IE. The program will use an interactive format to provide participants with opportunities to discuss their work and to build on questions and innovations that arise. Somewhat informal, the workshop will involve variously experienced IE researchers who will be invited to consult and discuss various issues that arise when planning and conducting an IE. As in prior years, doing analysis in IE will be core to the proceedings.

Closing Remarks - David Fasenfest, Editor, Critical Sociology
Five decades after President Lyndon Johnson declared an unconditional war on poverty, we have evidence of growing poverty locally, nationally and globally. In the aftermath of the Great Recession, the ranks of the new poor encompass the college educated, former middle class workers, suburbanites and homeowners. Today, we are witnessing the unraveling of anti-poverty programs and the erosion of the social safety net for millions of poor families in the United States and elsewhere. The retrenchment of social welfare policy has been driven by neoliberalism, victim blaming and an emphasis on individual responsibility for being or becoming poor. Yet, there is a vacuum of scholarly critique and public discourse over the roles social institutions play in aggravating or alleviating poverty. In the midst of the challenges of this post-Great Recession social milieu, there are opportunities to employ creative and innovative ways in which to respond to poverty, including programs and policies that support activities such as social entrepreneurship; asset building; human capital development; economic sustainability and well-being; and innovative ways in which to fund these initiatives.

The purpose of this one-day conference is to bring together policy makers, government officials, nonprofit organization leaders, local experts, practitioners, activists, educators and researchers to examine innovative programmatic and policy responses aimed at reducing poverty in this post-Great Recession period. The conference includes experts from many disciplines providing the opportunity for cross-disciplinary exchange about innovations in practice, policy and research; reflection on current challenges and opportunities in addressing poverty; and visioning about what further is needed.

This year’s Institutional Ethnography workshop will be based primarily around working sessions. These sessions are dedicated to providing feedback on (and discussion of) work being done that is influenced by institutional ethnography. These sessions will have approximately eight participants discussing two to three pieces of work in each session. There is no requirement that participants submit work, but all pre-registered participants will have had the opportunity to read work ahead of time. However, participants who have not had the opportunity to read submitted work are welcome (and encouraged!) to engage in the discussions. The workshop will begin and end with full group discussions of IE work.

Program:

8:30am–9:00am Registration
9:00am–10:00am Full Group Discussion of IE Work
10:00am–12:00pm Working Session #1 (groups)
12:00pm–1:15pm Lunch break
1:15pm–3:15pm Working Session #2 (groups)
3:15pm–4:45pm Reconvene as Full Group
4:45pm–5:00pm Announcements, wrap up, and discussion of next year’s workshop

THEMATIC Session 8: Disability, Poverty, and Work: Multiple Locations of Disadvantage
Room: Foothill J
Both people with disabilities and paid care workers who provide the assistance they need are often trapped in low paid jobs. Also, lack of paid care (or the expense of such care) may adversely affect the employment of family members of individuals who require assistance - especially mothers, daughters and female spouses or partners. Thus, people occupying multiple locations with respect to disability may be subjected to economic disadvantage. The interests of those who inhabit these various locations are often seen as conflicting - reducing chances for common understanding and action. A session including papers exploring the work and economic disadvantages of various locations with respect to disability (individuals with disabilities, family members and paid care workers) could provide fruitful identification of common ground.

“Effects of Childhood Disability on Parental Employment: The Importance of Long Term Supports,” Sara E. Green, University of South Florida

Session 91: Social Action - Highlight the Work of the Social Action Winner
Room: Foothill H

Sponsor: Program Committee

Organizer & Presider: Stephen Morewitz, CSUEB

Description:

The SAGE Project, (Standing Against Global Exploitation), is winner of the 2014 Thomas C. Hood Social Action Award. The SAGE Project is an outstanding example of an innovative and comprehensive organization in San Francisco, CA, which is devoted to serving the disadvantaged communities, which is a key criteria for winning the Thomas C. Hood Social Action Award.

The SAGE Project is a primary resource for information about commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking for sex and labor of both adults and children. SAGE has one of the longest standing “john school” programs in the country which is a partnership with the SFPD and the SF District Attorney’s Office and addresses the demand side of sexual exploitation.
The SAGE Project is a survivor-led and focused organization. The Project was founded by a survivor of commercial sexual exploitation and substance abuse who was a forerunner of promoting this issue prior to it ever having national attention.

The SAGE Project continues to provide quality local and regional services to adults and youth who have been affected by sexual exploitation, trauma, and abuse. SAGE also works nationally and internationally to address the demand side of sexual exploitation, to train organizations and communities on how to assist survivors, and assists law enforcement and law makers to understand the dynamics of trauma and exploitation.

SAGE provides comprehensive trauma-informed and healing services which include:

- Peer Counseling
- Case Management
- Mental Health Therapy
- Psycho-Social, Life Skills and Process Groups
- Harm-Reduction Focused Substance Use Counseling
- Acupuncture and other Holistic Healing Services
- First Offender Program/Restorative Justice for Buyers Program

Below is a description of several of the SAGE Project’s innovative and comprehensive programs and activities:

The STAR Center of the SAGE Project
The STAR Center of the SAGE Project opened in 1998 with funding from the San Francisco Department of Public Health, Community Behavioral Health Services. The goal of the program is to reduce risks of harm, substance abuse and usage, and the effects of trauma in order to help participants’ master essential competencies and progress toward self-sufficiency. STAR serves adult women and male to female transgendered women who suffer substance use and trauma disorders resulting from commercial sexual exploitation, abuse, intimate partner violence, involvement in the sex industry, and other associated traumas.

The First Offender Prostitution Program (FOPP)
The First Offender Prostitution Program (FOPP), also known as ‘john school’, is a court diversion program that seeks to curb the demand for commercial sexual exploitation in the San Francisco Bay Area by reducing recidivism among those who solicit prostitution. This White Paper will cover the history and design of the FOPP, as well as its philosophical underpinnings and educational objectives. As one of the original founders of this world-renowned program, SAGE seeks to shed light on the value of this model as a demand reduction strategy and address any misconceptions about the nature of such restorative justice programs.

The Early Intervention Prostitution Program (EIPP)
The Early Intervention Prostitution Program (EIPP), offers a wide range of services to young women entwined in the commercial sex industry. Participants are referred by the District Attorney’s Office, Pre-Trial Diversion, and the Community Court system. Services are flexible so they can be adapted to meet the specific needs of the participants at their respective stages of readiness. Services include: comprehensive case management with a harm reduction emphasis, support services including substance abuse counseling, trauma and mental health services, acupuncture and holistic healing services, and a variety of process and psycho-educational groups. The EIPP predominately serves young women ages 18-25; however, does serve M-F transgendered individuals and other age groups who are referred.

Description:

This session is designed to provide participants with ideas on how to improve their chances of finding a position. Panelists with experience (some of it very recent) looking and hiring for positions will kick off the discussion, but ample opportunity will be given to participants to share their own experiences and ask questions. The sooner in their graduate careers that individuals begin thinking about going on the market, the better it is, since there are things that they can do in graduate school to improve their prospects. So, this session is for Society members currently looking for a position, but also for anyone who plans to be on the market in the next three-four years -- and for anyone who feels that s/he has useful information to share with others about her/his own experiences.

8:30am – 10:10am  Co-Sponsored Invited Session with ASA

Session: Community Based Research: A Key to the Equitable Development of US Cities
Location: Hilton San Francisco Union Square
Room: Golden Gate 8, Lobby Level

Sponsors: Section on Community and Urban Sociology (ASA)
The Society for the Study of Social Problems

Description:

Inequality, long a subject of urban research, has become a focus of wide-ranging policy debates. A growing number of scholars are collaborating with community organizations on research and policy initiatives that address various trajectories of inequality in efforts to create more equitable and sustainable cities and metropolitan regions. This session will bring together academic researchers and their community partners who are engaged in these efforts in the San Francisco Bay area. One team will examine domestic violence and the other will explore mental health issues in the American Indian community. URBAN (the Urban Research Based Action Network) is a national, interdisciplinary of scholars who are engaged in collaborative research to advance equity and social justice. Three members of the Sociology Planning Group of URBAN will discuss these particular partnerships and other objectives and initiatives of the network.

On January 20, 2009, with the inauguration of Barack Obama as the 44th President of the United States, perceptions were that his election was the first fruit of seeds sown during the 1960s to the present. We were moving into the second decade of the 21st century, with an ambitious social, cultural, and economic agenda based on racial, ethnic, and gender equality. For a majority of citizens, the mask of bigotry could be removed, and the veil of discrimination lifted.

Against this backdrop, the Taxed Enough Already (TEA) Party, American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), American Crossroads, and Americans for Prosperity, alongside like-minded groups, effortlessly tapped into a thinly veiled sentiment of how to sustain and embolden inequality as an American virtue. This was accomplished by calling for grassroots organizations to become confederates with political action committees to fight progressive legislation seeking to illuminate and redress financial concerns of the middle class, the provision of healthcare to the uninsured, and pathways to citizenship for undocumented children and adults.

Additionally, this political strategy built impasses via dog whistle sound bites against racial and sexual equality, and women’s reproductive rights. In the face of this opposition, the Presidency was on display, as we watched a series of cloture skirmishes, filibusters, and obstructions to a forward-thinking agenda. So, despite the veil being lifted, it appeared to stall and begin dropping, as homophobia, colorblindness, backstage racism, and economic inequality intensified. For me as well as many others, removing the mask and lifting the veil had become one of the hardest tasks to begin as we remained cautious in “picking our battles,” hoping we have triaged correctly.

What became clear to me, was if Dunbar felt we were wearing the mask that grins and lies in the 19th century, and Du Bois felt “the problem of the 20th century was the color line,” the disenfranchised we of the 21st century are persons of color, lesbian, gay, and transgendered, naturalized, unemployed, middle-class, and the poor. For example, a June 2014 Catalyst article, reports that Women of Color must reduce their ambitions due to bias. The 2010 Census confirmed that Women of Color still make substantially less than White women, thereby delaying their social mobility. Both they and their male counterparts, in turn, have been hit especially hard by the near depression and recession. While Latinas/os and immigrant-rights activists could claim a small victory when President Obama issued an Executive Order in 2012 in support of the Dream Act, immigration legislation has been postponed again, and Latinas/os, too, suffer economic woes much more severe than whites’. Scientific research funding is under attack as never before, making it much more difficult for Academics of Color to publish and to advance in their profession, and the lesbian, gay, transgender, and queer communities continue to work for marriage equality. The delicate political coalitions that have been formed by these groups around parallel social agendas implode and explode as significant change continues to be elusive, despite the 239 years of incremental progressive change since the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.
Consequently, as suddenly and decisively as Obama’s election and the electoral directive arrived, he and it were faced with contests that left constituents for and of change bereft and asking: How do we remove the mask and lift the veil? What are consequences of doing so? How will they benefit a society in need of repair and reconciliation? On the other hand, I along with others ponder whether expanding our 50 years (1964-2014) of laboring to locate and eradicate separate, but imbalanced precepts within our democratic society, will cause many to keep the mask in place and never lift the veil. Then again, the words of Dunbar and DuBois echo in our minds as we continue to contemplate removing the mask and lifting the veil.

In preparing to convene our 2015 meeting in Chicago, we invite scholars, scholar-activists and practitioners to examine the issues of race, gender, and class in the first decade and half of 21st century to locate avenues to continue the progressive work they have begun, by investigating fractures in building a culture free of “isms.” As scholars in pursuit of a just society, what we offer at this time of historical change may alter the most pressing problems carried across centuries.

Coming this Fall – The SSSP Membership Survey

The Administrative Office will be distributing a survey to all current members this fall. The survey will be used to gauge member satisfaction with current operations of the Society, as well as help to develop new directions for Society activities. Survey participation is essential for us to know what is working and what can be improved or changed. Be on the lookout for the survey this fall – we look forward to your participation!
In this groundbreaking new text general editor Javier Trevino, working closely with a panel of experts, thoroughly examines all angles of social problems.
