

Honoring the SSSP in Your Estate Planning

Thank you for considering the SSSP in your estate planning. Making a bequest to the SSSP ensures that the Society can continue to serve as a space that supports social justice research and the development of scholar-activists for years to come.

The following is an example of making your wishes for bequests known in your estate planning. We recommend consulting a financial or legal advisor when planning your estate for tax benefits and other details.

“I give, devise, and bequeath to the Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP), a qualified charitable organization, the sum of $ insert amount or the following percentage insert % of my estate or securities or property described here in, namely...to be used as directed by the SSSP Board of Directors.”

Inform the Executive Officer if You Make a Generous Donation

If you honor the Society with a bequest, please contact the Executive Officer at ewindsor@westga.edu to discuss how you would like your donation to be recognized and celebrated. The Society will respect your request for anonymity.
