NOTES FROM THE CHAIR

This is the second newsletter of our Crime and Juvenile Delinquency Division from Stacy Burns, Chair. In this issue of the newsletter, we feature a preview of the panels organized by our Division for the SSSP meeting in Atlanta and other news. Don’t forget to attend Session 93, Sunday August 15th from 10:30am-12:10 pm, the special session to award the Division’s first Lifetime Achievement Award in Crime and Juvenile Delinquency to Valerie Jenness of UC Irvine.

We are also happy to announce our new newsletter editor Diana Veloso from Loyola University in Chicago (see p. 5). Welcome, Diana!

I hope you enjoy this newsletter and I look forward to seeing you in Atlanta!

Best regards,

Stacy
The theme of this year’s annual SSSP meeting is social justice work. In the words of current SSSP President JoAnn Miller, “Social justice work is problem-driven scholarship that employs rigorous theory and research methods. Examples include work on human rights and civil rights; action research focused on injustices on the factory floor or in the courtroom; and the study of discrimination or violence which is directed at groups or individuals in local communities in the United States and throughout the wider world.” More information on the meeting can be found online via: http://www.sssp1.org/

Congratulations to Michael Adorjan, Department of Sociology, McMaster University, Winner of the 2010 CJDD Student Paper Competition for his paper entitled, “Tethering Rehabilitation and Punishment: The Salience and Ambiguity of Rehabilitative Rhetoric within Canadian Youth Justice Debates.”

The award committee consisted of Robert Garot (Chair), Tim Berard and Karen Weiss. The committee had the following praise for the winning paper:

"While we had many excellent submissions, the paper by Michael Adorjan, "Tethering Rehabilitation and Punishment: The Salience and Ambiguity of Rehabilitative Rhetoric within Canadian Youth Justice Debates,' is our choice for the 2010 SSSP Graduate Student Paper Award. The paper is commendable for offering a nuanced discussion of an interesting, complicated and very important phenomenon. One of the features we most admire is the way that the analytic issue of different models (as in Packer's two models of the criminal process) or types (as in Weberian ideal types) of juvenile justice are addressed in a manner which acknowledges the relevance of the two models without reifying them or placing more analytic weight upon them than is empirically justifiable. Furthermore, the paper addresses how actual practices and discourses can be best understood by applying two ostensibly antagonistic models simultaneously, theoretically belying conventional political wisdom, and empirically addressing how this is actually accomplished by social actors themselves, with illustrations from a wide variety of naturally occurring political speeches and testimonies. The theoretical insights, empirical data, and the references to different theoretical and empirical scholarship are interwoven throughout the article, providing a paper that is challenging and insightful both methodologically and theoretically."

NEW NEWSLETTER EDITOR FOR CJDD

Please welcome aboard Diana Veloso as our new editor for the CJDD newsletter. Diana is a PhD candidate in Sociology at Loyola University Chicago. Her dissertation is about the life histories and issues of women formerly on death row in the Philippines. Outgoing editor Sarah Shannon has served as editor since Fall 2006.
MEMBER NEWS AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Effective June 1, 2010, Michael Musheno has been named Director of the Legal Studies Program and Lecturer in Residence at Berkeley Boalt Hall School of Law, UC/Berkeley.

Anita Wilson has a report available on her website titled, “Interrupted Education – Interrupted Life.” The report describes findings from Wilson’s research project which looks at how the criminal justice system acts as an exacerbating or ameliorative force on the educational progress of young offenders. The report can be found here: http://www.interrupted-education.com/

Mary Hollowell’s book The Forgotten Room: Inside a Public Alternative School for At-Risk Youth (Lexington Books) was named a finalist in the education/academic category for the International Book Awards.

Gray Cavender and Nancy Jurik presented a colloquium at the Czech Academy of Sciences (Prague, Czech Republic) on June 3, 2010. The colloquium title was, “Work-Life Balance and the Fictional Policewoman: Jane Tennison in the British TV Series Prime Suspect.

James Ptacek has edited a new volume with Oxford Press: Restorative Justice and Violence Against Women considers both the dangers and potential benefits of using restorative justice in these cases of violence against women. The contributors include antiviolence activists and scholars from the United States, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, where restorative justice is beginning to be practiced. Their chapters introduce a wide range of perspectives, offering rich descriptions of new programs that combine restorative justice with feminist antiviolence approaches. Advocates, community activists, and scholars will find the theoretical perspectives and vivid case descriptions presented here to be invaluable tools for creating new ways for abused women to find justice.
