In courses on social problems and health, gender, aging and disability, the harmful side effects of prescription drugs are an overlooked epidemic. They are the 4th leading cause of death in the United States and result in an estimated 1.5 million hospitalizations a year.(1) An estimated 46 million Americans suffer from harmful side effects, especially from newer drugs tested in trials that companies design to minimize evidence of harm and maximize evidence of benefits. Most vulnerable are women, people with chronic conditions, and seniors.

Out of the roughly 100 new drugs approved each year, 3-4 offer significant new benefits, and another 7-11 offer some advantage over existing drugs. Over time they have contributed to a large medicine chest of drugs that greatly improve our lives. But the other 85-90 new drugs are judged by independent review groups as little or no better than existing ones. These new drugs, approved as “safe and effective,” have a 20 percent chance of getting a Black Box warning or being withdrawn because their side effects are so toxic.(2, 3) This is hardly the benefit-harm ratio that society thinks it is getting.

The sociological and institutional dynamics behind this man-made epidemic are explained in The Risks of Prescription Drugs (Columbia 2010). They involve incentives that reward companies for developing mostly drugs of little benefit, testing them to minimize evidence of harms, approving any drug not inferior to a placebo, massively marketing launches before good safety information is available, and paying lead clinicians to persuade colleagues to prescribe drugs for unapproved uses. Usually, patients are not told. Peter Conrad and Cheryl Stults illustrate in the book the pharmaceuticalization of women’s bodies, while Allan Horwitz describes the pharmaceuticalization of people’s minds and moods. Prescriptions for sadness, disappointment, anxiety, anger, and loss have increased many fold. These examples build on Conrad’s important earlier book, The Medicalization of Society.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR:

Hello from Georgia,

I hope that this issue finds your fall semester productive and exciting. Having returned from our fourth most well attended meetings, it is exciting to report the society's business: meeting minutes, budget, and other key events from Las Vegas. This issue also contains calls for nominations for our awards (pgs.11-15).

Be sure to read Dr. Héctor Delgado's column (pg. 3). It is important and thought provoking. His discussion of the sad set of events involving Troy Davis reminds me why we are in this business, particularly since I am in Criminal Justice in Georgia. Other very good reads in this issue include our cover story by Dr. Donald Light on the harmful effects of prescription drugs and the book review by Dr. Kathleen Guidroz of Naked Lives (pg. 8). Finally, don't miss our President- Dr. Wendy Simonds' call for papers for next year's meeting "The Art of Activism" (pg. 10).

Happy Reading,
Brent Teasdale, Ph.D.

From the Executive Officer—Héctor L. Delgado

It was great to see so many of you in Las Vegas. It was the fourth best attended meeting in the history of the organization. I want to thank everyone who contributed to the success of the meeting, but especially to program chair Karen McCormack and her committee, President A. Javier Treviño, and to Michele, Kelley, Sarah, and Lisa in the administrative office. The Board, as always, worked hard, as have numerous committees, meeting long hours, making important decisions to improve the organization and to recognize the achievements of our members. But it was not all work. Folks had the chance to catch up with old friends. I heard a lot of laughter and saw a lot of hugs. The breakfast for new members was a huge success!

I'd also like to thank members who sent in their evaluations. These are always helpful to us. This year's comments were perhaps the most negative we've received in a long time, but not surprisingly given the location. Most of the negative comments had to do with the fact that it was Las Vegas, not the most ideal location for an annual meeting of the SSSP. Some of the issues raised by folks will be addressed next year simply by not being in Las Vegas, since they were Vegas-specific. While it is unlikely that we will return to Las Vegas in the future, I can't promise that we won't, since the location is determined by the ASA, as it was this year (and at the last moment). (BTW, I should note that some members would love to return to Sin City.) Issues raised by members in the survey not unique to Vegas, however, will be taken very seriously, as they always are. We look forward to seeing all of you next year in Denver. Next year's theme is "The Art of Activism," and the meeting will be presided over by our new president for 2011-2012, Dr. Wendy Simonds.

Troy Davis

As many of you know, Troy Davis was executed by lethal injection September 21 after the Supreme Court of the United States refused a stay. He died at 11:08 PM, at the age of 42 and 22 years after he was found guilty of murdering Officer Mark MacPhail. Before he died, he declared his innocence for the last time, saying to the MacPhail family, that "despite the situation you are in, I'm not the one who personally killed your son, your father, your brother. I am innocent. The incident that happened that night is not my fault. I did not have a gun. All I can ask ... is that you look deeper into this case so that you really can finally see the truth." He added, "I ask my family and friends to continue to fight this fight. For those about to take my life, God have mercy on your souls. And may God bless your souls."

We may never know whether Mr. Davis murdered Officer MacPhail, and it is difficult to imagine what Officer MacPhail's family has had to endure for over two decades, but if there was ever a case that warranted a commutation from death to life in prison, this was such a case. Yet, the Georgia Pardon and Parole Board decided not to grant clemency. I will not go into the details of the case in this column. Instead, I'd like to express the hope that someday we as a society will end this barbaric practice, as have so many countries around the world and as several more states have in the past few years. Currently, the United States is fifth in the world in the number of executions, behind China, Iran, North Korea, and Yemen. But what is especially troubling is that, according to the Innocence Project, there have been 273 post-conviction exonerations in the United States. Seventeen of those exonerated through DNA were on death row. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsberg observed, "I have yet to see a death case among the dozen coming to the Supreme Court on eve-of-execution stay applications in which the defendant was well represented at trial ... People who are well represented at trial do not get the death penalty." Even if the death penalty is not eliminated as a form of punishment, racial disparities in the manner in which the death penalty is applied should be sufficient reason for a moratorium to be put in place until they, at least, are eliminated.

But there is some light at the end of the tunnel and hopefully this execution, decried by so many people, not only in the United States but from around the world, will help to change public opinion, which had been changing even before this execution. A 2011 Gallup poll showed that 61% of Americans supported the death penalty in cases of murder, the lowest percentage recorded by Gallup since 1976. But what is more encouraging is that when given a choice between the death sentence and life without parole, 49% of respondents selected death and 46% life without parole. There is still work to do. We were reminded of that during a recent televised debate between GOP presidential hopefuls, when the audience erupted into loud applause when the moderator noted that Texas under Governor Perry had executed 234 people. The SSSP should think long and hard about how it can contribute to this debate and ultimately, hopefully, to the eradication of the death penalty in the United States and everywhere else in the world.

The Overlooked Epidemic in Harmful Side Effects from Prescription Drugs

The epidemic of adverse drug reactions illustrates C. Wright Mills' emphasis on how personal troubles are shaped by social institutions. Pharmaceutical companies lie at the heart of the medical-industrial complex. Market-driven research and company-sponsored researchers create new categories of risk and disease, often based on surrogate or substitute measures, such as high cholesterol as a surrogate for risk of heart disease, or serotonin levels as a surrogate for major depression. In both these cases and others, millions of people take billions of pills before independent researchers finally discover they benefit patients far less than claimed. Meantime, people think they are "sick" and take drugs that prompt adverse reactions.

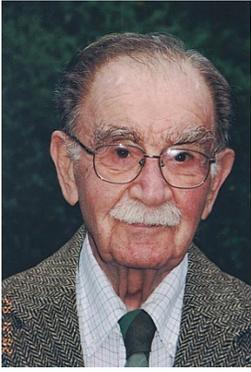

The sociological study of the epidemic from harmful side effects is leading to new insights. One model of institutional practices is the Risk Proliferation Syndrome. It consists of network interactions between companies, regulators, insurers, clinical leaders and patients that maximize the number of people exposed to harmful side effects. How this works for people with different disabilities, compared to people with HIV/AIDS, or people who have no clinical symptoms but believe they have a medical problem is an area ripe for further exploration.

A related theory draws on the economic concept of a market for 'lemons' to argue that the epidemic of harmful side effects stems from pharmaceuticals being a market for 'lemons' in which the sellers know about dangers and risks but profit from not disclosing them to customers or diverting their attention from them. Unlike the used car market, however, this is a market that produces new 'lemons.' For example, companies are developing cancer drugs by the score because they can charge so much for them. Yet most are approved with weak evidence of their clinical advantages over existing drugs, though most are highly toxic. Heavy marketing, cash payments (called 'rebates') to oncologists who prescribe them, and close management of which trial findings are published in medical journals all contribute to underplaying or masking seriously harmful side effects. Sociological studies of how this epidemic is spreading are badly needed.

Donald Light is a medical and economic sociologist who currently teaches at Stanford as the Lokey visiting professor about problems in health care services.

MEMORIAL MINUTE FOR EGON BITTNER

Faculty Meeting, Sept. 8, 2011

Not long after he started at Brandeis in 1968—it may have been just a few weeks—Egon Bittner and I had occasion one day to stay at the university for an evening meeting or event. First, we went to dinner in Waltham. It was a warm day, and we were both wearing short sleeved shirts. As we were sitting across from each other, I saw the tattooed number on Egon's arm. 'Oh,' I said, 'I didn't know....' Egon was silent. I said I had just finished reading Solzhenitsyn's One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich. 'Was it anything like that?' I asked. 'It was much worse; there were ways to survive,' Egon replied, and then he added, 'I don't want to talk about it.'

I never brought it up again, but the pain and resignation I felt and saw in Egon at that moment have always stayed with me. To be able to endure what he went through in concentration camps for four years is in itself almost incomprehensible. And admirable beyond knowing how to say it. Egon often had a sort of default sad look on his face. I never knew, partly because I never asked, how much he dwelt on the tragic years in the camps and how much melancholy may simply have been deeply embedded in his character.

Egon was born in 1921 in Czechoslovakia. He immigrated to the United States in 1949. His studies of sociology, particularly sociological theory, led him to do his PhD at the University of California at Los Angeles. He first taught at the University of California at Riverside and then at the University of California Medical School before coming to Brandeis in 1968. He remained here until his retirement in 1991.

After mastering sociological theory, Egon came to specialize in ethnomethodology, the study of meaning, order, and patterns in the behaviors of everyday life. He also came to specialize in the study of the police. Among his important writings were The Function of the Police in Modern Society (1970), "The Police on Skid Row" (1967), Aspects of Police Work (1970), and "The Capacity to Use Force as the Core of the Police Role" (1985).

I found it completely understandable that Egon became well known among police and sociologists for studying the proper limits of police power. His research included driving around in squad cars and hanging around police stations to gather data. As I saw it, he who had been subjected to the most excessive and grotesque power of the twentieth century found his way to empathize with other victims of unjust power and to try, as a professional, as an academic, as a sociologist, and as man of great compassion, to take steps toward defining the proper limits of power and persuading some people in authority who could act on his ideas and insights to do so. So significant were his contributions to police scholarship that he was awarded the Police Executive Research Forum's Leadership Award in 1998. The Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies regularly gives the Bittner award for distinguished service in law enforcement.

Here, from our forthcoming department newsletter, are tributes to Egon from two well respected scholars who as graduate students were thrilled to work with him and ever grateful for his guidance and counsel. Ruben Rumbaut, a major scholar of immigration issues, wrote:

I met Egon in 1971 when I arrived at Brandeis as a graduate student. I became his TA, and he became my advisor, chair of my dissertation committee (with Kurt Wolff and Morrie Schwartz), collaborator on my first sociological publication in the 1970s, and for almost four decades a cherished friend. Egon was one of the wisest and most profoundly decent men I've ever met, and ...he was extraordinarily kind, generous, and modest to a fault. He influenced by example, and I was greatly indebted to him -- to the point that one day about 30 years ago I asked him rhetorically, "how can I ever repay you?" Egon just looked wryly at me and said in that understated way of his, "In the great chain of being, one day it will be your turn." Several years later in San Diego I was put in a similar position after I'd helped a Vietnamese couple in various ways, and my friend Thuy asked me "how can I ever repay you?" I told her about Egon Bittner and simply repeated his answer to me.

Nancy Chodorow is known far and wide as the author of The Reproduction of Mothering, which had been her dissertation, done under Egon's guidance. She wrote:

How to convey how important Egon Bittner was to me when I was at Brandeis and, really, ever since? He was a model of brilliance, intellectual integrity, and generosity, a magnet for students of my generation (students from other universities as well) who wanted to learn from him about phenomenology, ethnomethodology, Weber, Durkheim, Parsons – about being able in a serious way to read and think. Every course was superb: I and several others took the ethnomethodology seminar more than once....

Egon's personal presence was remarkable. He was completely interested, quietly tolerant of whatever any student expressed or did. He made respect the center of his intellectual practice, as he listened to students and taught us to read texts from within and to think from the point of view of the writer himself...

About her dissertation, later her first book, Nancy added:

Shortly before I finished, he named the dissertation's subject – “you are writing about the reproduction of mothering” -- which became the title of my book and is now an everyday phrase in psychoanalysis, social science, and academic feminism.

Egon's politics were clear and strong. Democracy, civil liberties, civil rights, the works. But he had a most interesting take on the moment in 1977 when a neo-Nazi group wanted to march in Skokie, Illinois, where many Holocaust survivors lived. Egon appreciated that the ACLU was defending the Nazis' right to demonstrate there and said that he hoped they would do their very best to make the Nazis' case and that the courts would all the same find against them.

He startled me by speaking of “First Amendment Voluptuaries,” a phrase that seemed to me to combine exasperation, bitterness, ambivalence, admiration, and irony toward the whole shebang. If I recall correctly, he did not really oppose the courts' finding that the Nazis had the right to carry out their plan, even though the march finally was held in Chicago, not Skokie.

Egon was modest and self-effacing and exceptionally clear and judicious. As people remember him, the word “brilliant” comes up repeatedly. Egon came at ideas and events from angles new to most of us. There was a twinkle, a delight, sometimes even a mischievousness that allowed us enjoy and even be awed by the unexpected interpretation, provocative question, analysis, or insight.

Egon was an admirable department chair whose decency and whimsical sense of humor helped guide us through some difficult moments. He was a man of great respect for others and appreciation for differences, and he was blessed with an extraordinary sense of fairness.

I last saw Egon at his home not far from Berkeley two summers ago. He was already being treated for brain cancer, and it was clear there was not much time left. As my family and I departed from our visit with Egon and his wife Jean, I felt an ache for his condition and the pain of realizing we would never talk another time—I would never see him again. I also felt a deep sense of gratitude that he had been my friend and colleague and had had such profound effects on so many people despite and perhaps in some way also because of the great traumas of his early years.

There is in Jewish tradition a concept of the “lamed-vavniks.” Traditional Hebrew uses letters for numbers, so that the Hebrew letters for the mystical number 36 are the letter lamed, which equals 30, and the letter vav, or 6. 36 is a multiple of 18, whose numbers spell “chai,” or life. According to Jewish mysticism, there are 36 righteous and extraordinarily good people upon whom the fate of the world depends. The lamed-vavniks are not known to each other, but when one dies, another immediately takes their place. They are often not recognized or known as lamed-vavniks, but without their presence the world would come to an end.

I do not remember who, many years ago on some public occasion, praised Egon and concluded his remarks by suggesting that Egon Bitter was truly one of the lamed-vavniks. Indeed.

ISA Thematic Group on Institutional Ethnography

In 2011 the International Sociological Association established Institutional Ethnography as a thematic group (TG06), and we are soliciting abstracts for our inaugural sessions during the ISA Forum of Sociology in Buenos Aires, Argentina, August 1-4, 2012. Sessions are being organized on the following topics:

Puzzles and Challenges in Institutional Ethnography Research
 The Social Organization of Knowledge
 New Directions in Institutional Ethnography Research
 Researching and Working in the Community
 Transnational Ruling Relations
 Social Justice and Institutional Ethnography

Descriptions of these sessions can be found at <http://www.isa-sociology.org/buenos-aires-2012/tg/tg.php?n=TG06>. Since we did not have time to organize workshop sessions, presentations that are primarily instructional are certainly welcome. From this website, you can click on "On-line Abstract Submission" to submit a 300-word abstract electronically. The deadline for submissions is 11:59 pm EST, December 15, 2011.

Book Review of Naked Lives: Inside the Worlds of Exotic Dance by Mindy S. Bradley-Engen (2009)

Reviewed by Kathleen Guidroz, Ph.D.

When Hollywood movies feature a strip club, mostly they are portrayed as overwhelmingly male spaces where women's bodies are decorative props. Rarely do they show how that club's organizational structure influences the workers' experiences, behaviors, and perceptions within it. Mindy Bradley-Engen has accomplished this portrayal in her book Naked Lives: Inside the Worlds of Exotic Dance (2009), which takes the reader deep inside the social worlds and organizational patterns of three types of strip clubs, the hustle club, the show club, and the social club. Her book was written from the perspective of a sociologist and a "former sex worker" (p. 3) and stripper. I think this distinction of the researcher's background is important to make, as complete access of non-sex work researchers into the sex industry is somewhat restricted and, therefore, what we know sociologically about the sex trade remains incomplete. While participant observation is not necessary for sociologists to collect good data in researching the sex industry, I believe it gave Bradley-Engen an accurate "insider's" perspective and enabled her to collect an impressive amount of embodied observations and interviews that reflect gender, race (or racist), and social class distinctions within strip clubs. Out of the eight years she spent in strip clubs, Bradley-Engen spent three years dancing in 37 clubs and another two years collecting data in other roles in an additional 12 strip clubs. She conducted more than 50 interviews with exotic dancers; recorded dressing room conversations; made field notes on club policies, physical layout, and dancers' interactions with club owners and each other; and observed strip club interactions in numerous other establishments. This book exemplifies thorough ethnographic data collection and reflects all of the hours Bradley-Engen devoted to her research, which then enabled her to create a typology and distinct patterns of the three strip clubs, in particular how the clubs' organizational structures "increase the likelihood of feeling particular types of constraint or agency" (p. 18). Be sure to examine her "Club Classification Schema" on page 24 and "Select Work Order Features" on pages 87-91. They provide clear visual representations of the clubs' features, including dancer and customer turnover, power relations, money-making method and potential, emphasis on beauty, club atmosphere, and enforcement of policies. Chapters 3, 4, and 5 provide details and examples of these characteristics.

What does it mean to be a dancer in a hustle club versus the show and social clubs and how much "constraint or agency" is present? Bradley-Engen shows how in a hustle club dancers' bodies are the product being sold, and there are consistent patterns of dancers being "frustrated and powerless, devalued and exploited" (p. 33). Bradley-Engen describes "an atmosphere of normlessness" (p. 44) where dancers pay the club a "stage fee" (p. 35) and therefore must hustle for tips. The overall ethos, including the management encouraging solicitation without enforcing "no touching" policies, fosters apathy and antagonism. Readers like me might be surprised to envision how a hustle club stage becomes an assembly line "[w]ith no room to dance" (p. 31). The women simply move (and sometimes push or kick each other) down the stage to stop, squat, and collect tips from customers.

The show club is probably what most outsiders think of as a “gentlemen’s club” (p. 55). In a show club the emphasis is on dancers’ overall physical appearance and “pageantlike” (p. 58) behaviors and qualities. Bradley-Engen argues that here the focus is on receiving affirmation (p. 60) through “beautiful costumes” (p. 52) and engaging routines and “pole work” (p. 63) rather than hustling for money from customers. Given societal appearance norms, readers will understand Bradley-Engen’s use of the term “affirmation addicts” (p. 61) for dancers who have internalized the show club’s focus on validation and continual self-improvement. An interesting feature of the show club is “showcasing” (pp. 59-60), where dancers parade in evening gowns first on stage and then in the crowd. While Bradley-Engen writes that this event resembles part of a beauty contest (p. 59), this practice also mirrors Nevada brothels’ use of line-ups, as the goal is to be selected by customers for private one-on-one encounters.

In contrast to the exploitation present in the hustle club and the emphasis on affirmation at the show club, the social club is marked by a “‘good time’ atmosphere” (much like a neighborhood bar) with more symmetrical power relations and collaboration among dancers and club owners (pp. 73-74). Bradley-Engen argues that positive dancer-dancer, dancer-owner, and dancer-customer dynamics present in the social club are fostered by management’s de-emphasis on money (p. 74), as well as “dancer socialization” by older dancers who adopt the “mentor” role (p. 77). Accordingly, Bradley-Engen writes that long-term “networks of mutual obligation” (p. 81) contribute to a social club dancer’s obligation to others, which in turn “dissuades career termination” (p. 81).

Bradley-Engen uses the next chapter to explore the implications of dancers’ commitment and “career continuity” in relation to “differential experiences of agency and/or constraint” in the three types of clubs (p. 84). She reiterates in her conclusion that dancers’ ongoing experiences and participation are directly influenced by the “organizational culture and structural patterns” (p. 117) of the clubs; however, it would be interesting to have additional sociological explanations of strippers’ “aging out” process as we have for other populations such as musicians or criminal offenders.

Professors will find Bradley-Engen’s book to be a useful text in not only courses on the sex industry, but also courses on social stratification, gender, work and labor, and sexuality. Rather than a stand-alone book, I recommend it in tandem with another book such as Bernadette Barton’s Stripped (2006); Diablo Cody’s memoir Candy Girl (2006); Egan, Frank, and Johnson’s anthology Flesh for Fantasy (2006); or Strip Club (2010) by Kim Price-Glynn. Unfortunately, most academic literature focuses on heterosexual exotic dancing and heteronormative strip clubs. Nonetheless, students will be able to make additional comparisons on varying types of such clubs as well as the ways exotic dancers’ work lives reflect these differences. Ideally, students will also reflect on their own work experiences in other industries (or the same) and gain a solid sociological understanding of how social structure imparts tangible influences on individual experiences.

Call for Papers

This year, let us celebrate a crucial part of what initially brought the SSSP into existence in 1951: the art of activism. By focusing on the myriad intersections between art and activism, I mean to encourage the sharing of work that explores the creative spirit in activism as well as the sociopolitical power of art. Art and activism are both situational, relying always on history, context, and interpretation for their meaning. The meaning of art cannot be limited to aesthetic or meritocratic considerations, which also result from social interactions. Through our organizing, scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and community service, we are participant-observers in a variety of forms of activism and of artistry. Art and activism both: Emerge out of creative, passionate impulses; Involve transgression, challenging conventions, and making meaning in ways that are emotionally evocative and intellectually provocative; Have the potential to transform worldviews, social practices, and power dynamics; Have the ability to impel momentous connections between the many people who rail against multiple machines in pursuit of a variety of forms of social justice. Let us consider art and activism - and our role as practitioners in both cultural arenas.

See you in Denver!

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

2011 C. WRIGHT MILLS AWARD

Nominations are now open for the 2011 C. Wright Mills Award. Members of the Society are encouraged to submit letters of nomination for this prestigious annual award. Self nominations are acceptable. Edited volumes, textbooks, fiction and self-published works are not eligible.

The C. Wright Mills Award, established in 1964, is made annually and carries with it a stipend of $500 for the author(s) of the winning book. The deadline for the 2011 award nominations is December 15, 2011. The 2011 award will be presented at the 62nd Annual Meeting in Denver, CO, August 16-18, 2012.

C. Wright Mills wrote in The Power Elite that: "Only when mind has an autonomous basis, independent of power, but powerfully related to it, can mind exert its force in the shaping of human affairs. This is democratically possible only when there exists a free and knowledgeable public, to which [people] of knowledge may address themselves, and to which [people] of power are truly responsible." Consistent with Mills' dedication to a search for a sophisticated understanding of the individual and society, the award will be given for that book published in 2011 that most effectively:

- 1) critically addresses an issue of contemporary public importance,
- 2) brings to the topic a fresh, imaginative perspective,
- 3) advances social scientific understanding of the topic,
- 4) displays a theoretically informed view and empirical orientation,
- 5) evinces quality in style of writing,

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS 2012 THOMAS C. HOOD SOCIAL ACTION AWARD

Nominations are open for the 2012 Thomas C. Hood Social Action Award. Members of the Society are urged to submit names of organizations as nominees for this award.

The Thomas C. Hood Social Action Award, established in 1991, is awarded to a not-for-profit organization in the city/area hosting the annual meeting. The award carries a stipend of $1,000.

The award is a fitting expression of the overall purpose of the Society for the Study of Social Problems, which is concerned with applying scientific methods and theories to the study of social problems. SSSP aims to bring together scholars, practitioners, and advocates to examine and understand social problems in order to further solutions and develop social policy based on knowledge.

When this award was established, SSSP described its purpose as follows:

- The organization selected for this recognition should have a history of challenging social inequalities, promoting social change, and/or working toward the empowerment of marginalized peoples. Its work must demonstrate sensitivity to and respect for cultural diversity.

Preference is given to small, local agencies in the Denver area rather than large organizations or chapters of nationally-based organizations. The main criterion is the extent to which the organization reaches out to the disadvantaged in the community and uses innovative means for dealing with local social conditions.

The award will be presented on August 17, 2012 at the SSSP Awards Banquet in Denver, CO. Deadline for nominations is April 1, 2012.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Henry Kaufman Conference on Religious Traditions and Business Behavior

This conference explores two central questions in the relationship between the world's major religious traditions and the business behavior of adherents to those traditions:

First, what do the world's major organized religious traditions – Protestantism, Catholicism, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Judaism – proscribe about business and financial ethics and behavior?

Second, how and why have business and financial actors seriously compromised the leading religious traditions of their cultures?

By interrogating these two core questions, the conference will yield insights valuable to contemporary business and religious leaders about abiding questions such as: Do the scriptures and doctrines of these religions appear to have had a marked effect on financial behavior? Does religion appear to be a more potent or less potent influence than business ethics courses in fostering sound, ethical, and socially responsible financial behavior? How can religion best be promulgated to make financial behavior more sound, ethical, and socially responsible?

Authors are invited to submit papers related to the questions listed above.

The deadline for submitting papers is February 1, 2012. Please submit completed papers as e-mail attachments to BusinessandReligion@rhsmith.umd.edu.

Note: When submitting a paper, please include a title page with an abstract, names of authors/affiliations, and contact information for the submitting author.

Scholars will be invited to participate in two discussion sessions in College Park, MD, prior to the Spring 2013 conference. Further instructions will be communicated to the scholars at the time of proposal selection.

Call for Proposals: New Editor of Journal of Contemporary Ethnography

The Editorial Staff of the Journal of Contemporary Ethnography (JCE) announces a search for the next editor of our journal. The editor will serve a four-year term beginning in January 2013 and ending with Volume 45 (4) in December 2016. This editorial term is potentially renewable if the editor wants to continue and receives permission from Sage Publications to do so.

The editor is responsible for soliciting, reviewing, and making decisions about all manuscript submissions. JCE publishes six issues annually, and each issue typically contains four articles. JCE operates on an electric platform (Manuscript Central) which the editor uses to manage all aspects of the publication and review process. The editor is expected to work with the publisher to ensure timely and accurate delivery of manuscripts for publication.

JCE seeks an editor with a vision and strategy for maintaining and strengthening the journal as a prestigious outlet for the publication of ethnographic research conducted in a variety of disciplines. Applicants should have a distinguished scholarly record and experience in academic leadership roles. Applicants should also possess strong organizational and management skills, the ability to work well with others, and a commitment to JCE's mission.

Sage Publications provides JCE with generous support for the editorial office but the institution that hosts the journal will also be expected to provide support for the editor and the office. The proposal should indicate the expected institutional support. This institutional support might come in the form of additional faculty release time, travel funds, summer salary, office space, utilities, the use of computers and other office equipment, support for a full time Managing Editor, student workers, and/or other basic expenses.

Applicants should send a cover letter of application which includes their vision for the future of the journal and a description of their qualifications for the editorship.

Applicants should also include copies of their CV and documentation of prospective institutional support. These application materials will be due by November 1, 2011.

The review process will begin December 1, 2011. Applications, nominations and requests for additional information should be sent electronically to the JCE editorial team at jce@uni.edu. Please put "JCE editor application" in the subject line of your email.

If you have questions about the application process, please contact the current co-editors, Kent Sandstrom and Marybeth Stalp, at jce@uni.edu.

REVISED RESOLUTION: Sex Work

During the annual meeting in Las Vegas this past August, a resolution in favor of decriminalizing sex work was tabled for minor revisions at the Open Discussion of Resolutions Proposed to the Board of Directors' session. The Executive Officer and Jennifer Heine-man, a representative of a sex workers' organization in Las Vegas, made the changes and submitted it to the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors approved the resolution. The resolution appears below:

Whereas the criminalization of prostitution and other forms of sex work negotiated between consenting adults perpetuates violence and social stigma against sex workers, including by law enforcement, and prevents trafficked individuals from seeking medical care or protection from law enforcement and holding custody of their children; and represents one of the most direct forms of discrimination against women, trans individuals, and other gender minorities;

Whereas the criminalization of prostitution and other forms of sex work denies sex workers basic human and civil rights, including healthcare and housing, extended to workers in other trades, occupations, callings, or professions;

Whereas the decriminalization of prostitution would lead to safer working conditions and better health for both the worker and client, and allow workers to report nonconsensual activities to law enforcement without fear of being arrested;

Whereas the decriminalization of sex work would allow sex workers to enjoy their lives and livelihood without having to hide, and thereby seek and receive the same legal protections enjoyed by workers in other trades, work, occupations, or professions against crimes such as sexual harassment, sexual abuse, and rape;

Be it therefore resolved that the Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP) supports occupational support and sexual self-determination for adults engaged in sex work;

Be it further resolved that non-consenting adults and all trafficked children forced into sexual activity (commercial or otherwise) deserve the full protection of the law and perpetrators deserve the full punishment by the law;

Be it further resolved that the SSSP supports international AIDS relief that allows access to reproductive health for sex workers and renounces anti-prostitution legislation such as the APLO, or Anti-Prostitution Loyalty Oath, which prevents U.S. aid from being allocated to health organizations that provide medical support for sex workers;

Be it further resolved that the SSSP supports non-profit organizations that supply housing and other resources to trafficked individuals in the sex industry without mandatory, moralistic, 'therapy' or diversion programs;

Be it further resolved that the SSSP supports: (1) bipartisan legislation to decriminalize prostitution (2) public education regarding the costs of policing sex workers and (3) normalization of the occupation.

SCHOLARSHIP PURPOSE

The Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP), in keeping with its philosophy of active engagement with social problems, participation in social problem solutions, and advancement of knowledge through study, service and critical analysis, established the Racial/Ethnic Minority Graduate Scholarship at its annual meeting in August 1993. The purpose of the scholarship is:

- To identify and support developing minority scholars who exemplify and give fresh voice to the SSSP history and commitment to scholar activism
- To give renewed energy and wider lenses to diversity in scholarship
- To increase the pool of minority social and behavioral scientists
- To establish a formal commitment to diversity through support of a minority doctoral student in the social and/or behavioral sciences inclusive of course work or dissertation research support who demonstrates a commitment, through his or her scholarly examination, of any aspect of inequality, injustice and oppression

- Submission of a dissertation proposal of 15 or more double spaced pages. The student's dissertation advisor's letter should note that s/he expects the student to have defended the dissertation proposal and have achieved advanced status in the doctoral program (completed course work, examinations, and approval of their dissertation prospectus) by the end of the Spring 2012 academic year.

FUNDING

A $12,000 scholarship will be funded to one student with an additional $500 awarded for attendance at the annual meeting. CALL FOR PAPERS

For a special issue of the American Behavioral Scientist

“THE PRESENT AND FUTURE OF MENTAL HEALTH COURTS IN AMERICA”

Mental health courts (MHCs) are a relatively new development in the U.S. criminal justice system. In the late 1990s mental health courts began to emerge in the United States as a diversionary response to the large numbers of persons with mental illness recycling through the criminal justice system. Today it is estimated that there are 250 mental health courts operating nationwide. Mental health courts offer a problem-solving therapeutic-focused court response intended to reduce the continued recycling of people with mental illness through the criminal justice system. Based upon the theoretical framework of therapeutic jurisprudence, and modeled after drug court programs, MHCs are specialized voluntary criminal court dockets that utilize a designated judicial, legal, and treatment team to divert volunteering individuals from the criminal justice system into community-based treatment in lieu of traditional case processing and sentencing.

American Behavioral Scientist (ABS) invites submissions for a special issue on mental health courts. The purpose of the special issue is to bring together current research and analysis of these problem solving courts. The journal prefers academically oriented articles from social scientists and practitioners who are interested in understanding, advocating for, and critiquing mental health courts. We particularly welcome papers that are conceptually broad or oriented toward policy and practice. Quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methods approaches are all welcome.

Suggested topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The emergence of mental health courts
- Treatment issues for mental health court participants
- Analysis of the dynamics among key players in problem-solving courts
- Ethical and social policy issues in the implementation and financing of mental health courts
- Methodological challenges in studying mental health courts, especially around issues of efficacy and effectiveness
- Analysis/review of existing literature in the field

Request for Your Assistance: Sociology Texts Needed!

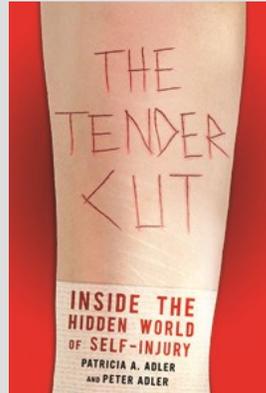

The Sociology Department of Sherubtse College in Kanglung, Bhutan (www.sherubtse.edu.bt) is requesting your kind assistance. The department is now concluding its second year offering sociology courses. Because we do not yet have a sociology library we are asking for book donations from the global community of sociologists. Our need for literature is vital in that Bhutan is undergoing profound and rapid social change and we believe that the discipline of sociology – and your book donations – can significantly contribute to its betterment. Both contemporary and time-tested classics will be greatly appreciated with single-subject books more useful than textbooks. We especially need books that focus on social theory, qualitative research methods, social statistics, the sociology of development, political economy, globalization, environmental sociology, rural sociology, social change, sociology of the family, sociology of religion, the sociology of health and medicine, technology and social forecasting and social demography. Questions can be directed to sherubtsebookdonations@gmail.com.

Please send your donations by October 15, 2011 to our North American collection point at:

Institutional Ethnography A New International Sociological Association Thematic Group

In 2011 the International Sociological Association established Institutional Ethnography as a thematic group (TG06), and now it solicits abstracts for our inaugural sessions that will be held in conjunction with the ISA Forum of Sociology in Buenos Aires, Argentina, August 1-4, 2012. Sessions are being organized on the following topics:

- Puzzles and Challenges in Institutional Ethnography Research
- The Social Organization of Knowledge
- New Directions in Institutional Ethnography Research
- Researching and Working in the Community
- Transnational Ruling Relations
- Social Justice and Institutional Ethnography

Descriptions of the Thematic Group on Institutional Ethnography (TG06) and these sessions can be found online by going to <http://www.isa-sociology.org/tg06.htm>. Click on “Call for Papers” to read the session descriptions and ISA website platform to submit an abstract electronically. The deadline for submissions is December 15, 2011. For membership in the Thematic Group go to http://www.isa-sociology.org/memb_i/.

Institutional ethnography is an alternative sociology founded by Dorothy E. Smith that examines social relations and social institutions from the standpoint of the experiences of particular, active subjects. It is distinct from other sociological modes of investigation in that it is not under the direction or conceptual control of any sociological theory; rather, inquiry begins in and remains in the social world in which we live. The aims of institutional ethnography investigations are threefold. The first is to discover how it is that day in and day out we put together our social world, including how our local everyday activities are linked to and coordinated by social relations that are not entirely visible from any one location. The second aim is to develop new ways of discovering ruling relations that are consistent with the materialist social ontology of institutional ethnography. The third aim is to build knowledge of institutional processes in general. This work involves an examination of studies done in varied institutional settings and drawing out those relations and social processes that are commonly found across institutions. Throughout institutional ethnography investigations, however, the focus is on the material world: what people are doing, with whom they are doing it, and the conditions under which their activities are carried out. Institutional ethnography investigations are not limited to any specific substantive area of research or professional practice.

For more information about the Thematic Group on Institutional Ethnography, contact its President, Alison I. Griffith, York University, Canada, at agriffith@edu.yorku.ca.

For information about the sessions at the Forum of Sociology, contact the Programme Coordinator, Paul C. Luken, University of West Georgia, USA, at pluken@westga.edu.

14th Annual Conference

CONFERENCE THEME "Justice and Work"

MAY 30-JUNE 1 2012

Loyola University Chicago
(Lake Shore Campus, Rogers Park)

Join us with a presentation at our annual conference! Possible topics for presentation include:

- How the distribution of and compensation for work affects the quality of life and development of persons, families, communities, and societies
- The just distribution of work in the family and school
- Immigration and work and societal responses to "illegal" work
- Gender, race, class, sexual orientation, and political ideology in the workplace
- Cooperation, mutual aid, collaboration, and shared decision-making in work situations and their salutary effect on personal and collective well-being
- Historical and contemporary struggles over collective bargaining and unions (e. g. the Pullman Strike of 1894 and recent corporate and governmental incursions into unions in the United States)
- Having a "Calling in Life" or "Life's Work" as opposed to a career
- Philosophies of work and employment especially those that promote freedom from work
- Labor in prison settings such as correctional institutions and internment camps
- Separation of work from healthful living in contemporary society
- Utopian visions of work in literature, film, and communal living arrangements.

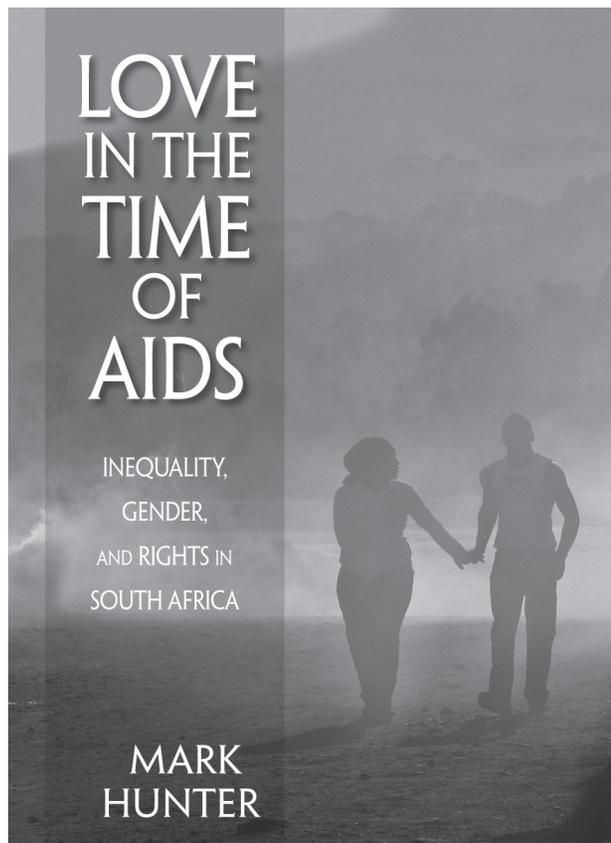

We also seek presentations that relate matters of work not only to quality of life generally but also to how individuals choose to live justly. Presenters might wish to touch upon as well topics related to peacemaking, restorative justice, and nonviolent conflict resolution.

The association puts great emphasis on the full participation of all at its conferences so presenters are encouraged to be brief. All sessions are plenary. We also seek to foster an atmosphere of hospitality during meals and after the work of the day is done.

You may submit an abstract for a scholarly paper or propose an entire panel session. JSA also encourages more creative modes of presentation including but not limited to video, photography, song, and interactive sessions.

Those interested in participating in the conference should send a title and abstract (fewer than 200 words) to 2012 Program Chair, Dan Okada <dokada@csus.edu> before March 1, 2012. We will make notifications of acceptance on a revolving basis.

LOVE IN THE TIME OF AIDS

Inequality, Gender, and Rights in South Africa

Mark Hunter

In some parts of South Africa, more than one in three people are HIV positive. Love in the Time of AIDS explores transformations in notions of gender and intimacy to try to understand the roots of this virulent epidemic. By living in an informal settlement and collecting love letters, cell phone text messages, oral histories, and archival materials, Mark Hunter details the everyday social inequalities that have resulted in untimely deaths. Hunter shows how first apartheid and then chronic unemployment have become entangled with ideas about femininity, masculinity, love, and sex and have created an economy of exchange that perpetuates the transmission of HIV/AIDS. This sobering ethnography challenges conventional understandings of HIV/AIDS in South Africa.

ITEM #5 – REVIEW OF THE MINUTES

Secretary Glenn Muschert reviewed the minutes of the 2010 Board Meetings and the Annual Business Meeting. The minutes were approved.

ITEM #6 – MONEY MATTERS

Treasurer Susan Carlson reviewed the report from the Treasurer. The Society continues to break even financially, with sufficient revenue to cover expenses, without dipping into institutional asset holdings. The Society has two sources of revenue: journal subscriptions and membership dues. Selection of an attractive site for meetings seems positively related to membership, as attendance at the meetings brings membership revenue. Institutional subscriptions of Social Problems are down, and this is related to the accessibility of the journal via ProQuest and Hein on-line. UC Press is now aware that the journal was available for free via these other on-line services, and this is being changed. There will now be a move by UC Press to recapture those institutional subscriptions that were lost. The Board discussed issues related to maximizing subscription revenues.

Part A: LBMC Communications Letter – LBMC expressed concern about the maintenance of the Society's tax-exempt status. The Board understood this warning, and discussion ensued regarding the activities of the Society, and the need to avoid any direct political action which could potentially threaten the Society's tax-exempt status.

Part B: 2010 Audit Report- the Society received a clean bill of health from its financial audit from LBMC. In addition, the Society was subject to an IRS audit of 2008 taxes. The audit was approved, and the tax-exempt status was approved. Some changes in bookkeeping will ensue, specifically the accounting practices related to advertising revenue.

ACTION: The Board approved the report of the Budget, Finance, and Audit Committee.

ACTION: The Board approved the results of the annual audit.

Report from Ad Hoc Revenue Generating Committee: Héctor Delgado chaired the committee, and reported on the ideas generated by the committee.

ACTION: The Board approved the report of the Revenue Generating Committee.

Stephani Williams, Chair of the Budget, Finance, and Audit Committee presented the Society's 2011 amended budget.

ACTION: The Board approved the 2011 amended budget.

Stephani Williams, Chair of the Budget, Finance, and Audit Committee discussed recommendations from the BFA Committee.

ACTION: The Board approved BFA Recommendation #1 – Tabling the usual Board vote on subscription increases for Social Problems until April 2012, which would be in line with the market flexibility needed in pricing the subscription.

ITEM #7 – REPORT FROM THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Héctor Delgado presented the report from the executive officer. A number of important issues were resolved during the previous year.

- The 2011 conference was moved at a late date from Chicago to Las Vegas.
- Social Problems subscriptions are down, and the E&P and BFA committees, executive officer, administrative officer and treasurer are monitoring this.
- Revenue generation is also an issue of importance for the Society, and the executive officer continues to monitor this issue.
- The Society launched a new and improved website.
- The Society responded to threats received by Frances Fox Piven as a result of criticisms raised on Fox "News." The executive officer sent letters to various agencies and organized a session on this topic at this year's meeting.
- The executive officer pushed for reconsideration in the Troy Davis death penalty case in Georgia.
- The executive officer sent letters to UNLV in support of social science scholars, whose jobs were slated to be cut.
- The executive officer hosted a meeting of the BFA committee at the University of LaVerne.
- The Board approved a policy for divisions who would like to host workshops before, during, or after the SSSP meetings.
- The Society has graciously received pro bono legal advice, and the SSSP now sets aside $100 to $1000 for legal advice for legal advice on contracts.
- Administrative officer and office workload is a continued concern. These staff members are very efficient, though also overloaded.

ACTION: The Board approved the Executive Officer's report.

Héctor Delgado clarified the proposed By-Laws changes:

To Article IV, Section 2, Qualifications for Holding Society Positions

Proposed wording: No person may be nominated for or hold any office, serve on any standing or temporary committee of the Society for the Study of Social Problems or on the Board of Editors of any periodical publication of the Society who is not a member of the Society. ACTION: The Board approved the proposed By-Laws changes.

To Article VI, Section 6, Committee on Committees

ACTION: The Board approved the proposed By-Laws changes.

To Article VIII, Section 5, Nomination for More than Once Position

Recommendation: the committee recommends that the new sorts of sessions being used this year could be continued.

The FY 11/12 net income for the SSSP is projected at $247,923. UC Press proposed tier pricing and a revised timeline for future years. They will make their 2012-13 price recommendation in April 2012. The representatives presented the newly-developed communications calendar for working with UC Press. The representatives also presented the full Sales, Marketing, and Circulation Report. Discussion ensued among members of the Board and the UC Press representatives, concentrating on maximizing subscriptions and revenue, while retaining institutional subscriptions.

Approved wording: No person may be nominated for or hold any office, serve on any standing or temporary committee of the Society for the Study of Social Problems or on the Board of Editors of any periodical publication of the Society who is not a member of the Society. Non-members may be nominated or appointed to such positions provided that they apply for membership when they accept the nomination or appointment except as noted below in Article V, Section 1, requiring two years prior...

To Article VI, Section 6, Committee on Committees

The Committee on Committees shall consist of six members of the Society elected by the voting membership to three year terms with the terms staggered so that at least two members are elected each year, depending on the number of vacancies. Each year the members of the Committee shall select from among their members who have served at least one-year, a Chairperson-elect to serve as Chairperson the following year.

The Committee's duties shall be to nominate or recommend for nomination members of selected appointed committees as stated in the By-Laws or assigned by the Board of Directors. A member may not serve on more than two committees within the Committee on Committee's authority.

To Article VIII, Section 5, Nomination for More than Once Position

Any member nominated for more than one position shall be asked by the Elections Committee Chairperson to select the position in which s/he prefers to serve. If the nominee otherwise qualifies but fails to indicate his or her preference, the Elections Committee Chairperson is required to submit the person's name to be a candidate for only one of the positions. If a member is currently serving in an elected capacity and is elected to another position, s/he must decide between the two positions. Members may not hold more than one elected position.

ACTION: The Board expressed its disapproval at Harrah's unwillingness to accommodate a request for a gender neutral restroom for the meeting space. A letter to such effect will be sent to Caesar's Entertainment.

ACTION: The Board accepted the reports from UC Press regarding the Social Problems Budget and Circulation Report, Social Problems Marketing Program, FY 2011-12 and the Sales, Marketing, and Circulation Report.

Additional division membership would be available at the cost of $10 per division.

ACTION: The Board approved that the Society would no longer have a pay-to-attend fundraiser.

ACTION: The Board approved that the proceeds of the fund-raising raffle will go to the winner of the Social Action Award.

ACTION: The Board approved two recommendations from the C. Wright Mills Award Committee, by separate votes. That the nomination deadline would be December 15, and that the cover letters would be required to speak to the criteria for the award.

ACTION: The Board approved a recommendation by the Joseph B. Glitter Award Committee. Namely, the addition to the operations manual to the effect that the solicitation of nominees for the award will be part of the duties they may have to perform as a member of the committee.

ACTION: The Board approved a motion to add "preference will be given to applicants who have not received support from the Lee Scholar Support Fund Committee before" to the criteria for the Lee Scholar Support Fund. In addition, a box will be added on the application from which would require applicants to indicate if they have previously received the award.

ACTION: The Board approved the abolishment of the professional mentorship program (not the meeting mentorship program).

ACTION: The Board approved the recommendation that the site reviews be conducted in the same year that the contracts are to be renewed.

ACTION: The Board charged the Permanent Organization and Strategic Planning Committee to move forward with concrete plans to engage the BFA Committee and the Executive Officer to proceed with hiring to meet the staffing needs of the Administrative Office.

ACTION: The Board charged the in-coming Racial/Ethnic Minority Graduate Scholarship Committee with the refinement of criteria for selecting candidates from economically disadvantaged backgrounds. The Board encourages the consideration of meaningful qualitative criteria.

ACTION: The Board approved the report of the Social Problems editor.

ITEM #5 – REPORT FROM THE OUTGOING EDITOR OF SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Ted Chiricos reported on previous year of the journal's operation. In all, 355 manuscripts were submitted, 26 accepted, with an average of 3.3 reviews for each journal and an average time of 62.1 days from submission to acceptance. Issues related to the responsible transition to the new editor. Expressions of gratitude were given to those whose support is instrumental in the functioning of the journal.

ITEM #6 – PRESENTATION BY THE EDITORIAL AND PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE CHAIR

Claire Renzetti, chair of the Editorial and Publications Committee, expressed the Society's gratitude for Ted's stewardship of the Society's journal. As an expression of the Society's appreciation, Ted Chiricos was presented with bound copies of the journal volumes that appeared under his stewardship.

ITEM #7 – REPORT FROM THE INCOMING EDITOR OF SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Becky Pettit, new editor of Social Problems, reported on the transition to the new editor's office. The journal is up and running at the University of Washington, the process is moving seamlessly. The new members of the editorial advisory board were reviewed, and the membership was welcomed to submit manuscripts for consideration.

ITEM #8 – REPORT FROM THE EDITOR OF SOCIAL PROBLEMS FORUM: THE SSSP NEWSLETTER

Brent Teasdale, Editor of Social Problems Forum: The SSSP Newsletter, reported that thus far there have been two issues produced by the new office at Georgia State University. The newsletter has been distributed electronically only, and a new comments section has been added to the Society's website.

ITEM #9 – REPORT FROM THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Héctor L. Delgado, Executive Officer, reported on the move of the meetings from Chicago to Las Vegas. In particular, the Executive Officer expressed gratitude to the Administrative Officer and to the members of the Board of Directors. In addition, the Executive Officer discussed the development of a new committee to discuss Revenue Generation. The new website is running, and the Executive Officer expressed gratitude to the technology committee. In addition, the Executive Officer commented on activities in the last year: responding to the death threats received by Francis Fox Piven; responding to the Georgia death penalty case of Troy Davis; efforts by the UNLV administration to terminate tenure track faculty, including some active Society members; and the needs of the Society for legal advice.

ITEM #10 – REPORT FROM THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER AND MEETING MANAGER

Michele Koontz, Administrative Officer and Meeting Manager reported that 716 participants came to this year's meeting, exceeding expectations. Accessibility services were a focus, and the Society was able to provide dietary accommodations and ASL services. Advertising campaigns were run in the previous year, and two new events were held: a new member breakfast and a welcoming reception. Michele Koontz expressed gratitude for the cooperation of those with whom she works closely, including Héctor Delgado, Kelly Flatford, Sarah Hendricks and President A. Javier Treviño. Sarah was presented with a token of the Society's gratitude for her four years of service.

ITEM #11 – REVIEW OF THE BY-LAWS CHANGES AND ANY PROPOSALS FOR FURTHER CHANGE

Héctor Delgado reported on the By-Laws Changes and any Proposals for Further Changes. These changes will come up for a vote by the membership at the up-coming election. See ITEM #4 above for full text of the proposed changes to the By-Laws. Héctor clarified the spirit and reasoning behind the three proposed changes to the By-Laws.

ITEM #12 – REPORT FROM THE RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE

Vice President Carolyn Perrucci reported on the 2011 Society resolutions. In all, there were three resolutions considered. Discussion of Resolution #3 regarding Sex Work was tabled, pending a stronger resolution that would be considered by the membership in the future.

ACTION: RESOLUTIONS #1: EXPRESSION OF GRATITUDE and #2: LABOR RIGHTS IN THE PUBLIC SECTOR were approved by a combined open vote of the membership present at the business meeting.

The full text of the resolutions is as follows:

RESOLUTION 1: Expression of Gratitude

Our sincere appreciation is expressed to all of the officers, committee chairs, and members who have made this program possible and whose efforts maintain the vitality of the SSSP. First, we thank President A. Javier Treviño for his outstanding leadership in developing the 61st Annual Meeting and its theme: Service Sociology. ning, and Monica White; and Local Arrangements Committee Chair: Shannon Monnat. We thank the staff of Harrah's Las Vegas Hotel for fine accommodations and we particularly want to recognize the efforts made by Greg MacKenzie, Catering/Convention Services Manager and Cindy Norlander, Citywide Group Reservations Coordinator.

The Society wishes to express its gratitude to Past President JoAnn L. Miller for her years of leadership; Vice-President Carolyn C. Perrucci for managing the resolutions process; Glenn W. Muschert for his service as Secretary; and Susan M. Carlson for her service as Treasurer. The Society also thanks Wendy Simonds, President-Elect; Wendy Chapkis, Vice-President Elect; Board of Directors: Sarah Jane Brubaker, Barbara Katz Rothman, Claire M. Renzetti, Valerie Leiter, Nancy Mezey, outgoing members Carol Brooks Gardner, Raymond J. Michalowski; Louis Edgar Esparza (outgoing) and Mandy Frake-Mistak, student representatives of the Board; Stephani Williams, Chair of the Council of Special Problems Divisions; Ted Chiricos, outgoing Editor of Social Problems; Brent Teasdale, Editor of Social Problems Forum: The SSSP Newsletter; Stephani Williams, outgoing Budget, Finance, and Audit Committee Chair and committee members David L. Levinson, Patrick Donnelly, and Susan M. Carlson; Claire M. Renzetti, Editorial and Publications Committee Chair and committee members Benigno E. Aguirre, Marjorie L. DeVault, Lara Foley, David A. Smith, Suzanne Vaughan, Ted Chiricos, Brent Teasdale, Stephani Williams, and Amy S. Wharton; the University of Tennessee and the Department of Sociology for hosting the SSSP Administrative Office; the Provost's Office at Wheaton College for its contribution to program activities and to the University of California Press for its financial contribution to the registration bags.

The Society wishes to thank Executive Officer Héctor L. Delgado, Administrative Officer & Meeting Manager Michele Smith Koontz, Administrative Assistant Kelley Flatford, and Graduate Research Associate & Webmaster Sarah Hendricks for continuing to make the organization run and do all that it does year in and year out. We especially want to thank Sarah for her exceptional service over the past four years.

RESOLUTION 2: Labor Rights in the Public Sector

WHEREAS: Public employees in many contexts have already made financial sacrifices to work in the public sector and have already been negatively affected by cuts or threatened cuts in public funding.

WHEREAS: Several state legislatures, in the name of closing these deficits, have moved to disenfranchise public employees by removing workers rights and restricting unionization; reduce and negate tenure for public teachers and college employees and professors; and overturn their collective bargaining rights; AND

WHEREAS: polls indicate a majority of Americans oppose the weakening of public sector employees bargaining rights;

AND BE IT RESOLVED: that the SSSP opposes restrictions on the rights of public employees at the local, state and federal level to collective bargaining and freedom of association and opposes legislation curbing collective bargaining for elementary, secondary and higher education institutions;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the SSSP stands in solidarity with public workers, including university and public education employees in their right to collective bargaining and to a fair and reasonable bargaining process.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That a copy of this resolution with a cover letter be forwarded to the governors, legislative leaders, and organizations, including public-sector unions, in states where legislation threatening the collective-bargaining rights of workers is pending or is being challenged, and any other individual or body that the Executive Officer of the SSSP and the Division determine.

ITEM #13 – REPORT FROM THE TREASURER ON THE FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE SOCIETY

Treasurer Susan M. Carlson reported on the financial condition of the society. Susan thanked those with whom the Treasurer closely works. Despite difficult economic times, the Society continues to break even, with sufficient revenue to cover expenses. The Society realized a growth in the net assets, as result of the Society's socially-responsible investment holdings. One area of present and future concern is the decline in institutional subscriptions for Social Problems, a significant source of revenue for the Society. Institutional subscriptions have declined approximately 35%, and this appears to be due to the availability of the journal via ProQuest. The journal has been removed from ProQuest, and efforts are underway to regain some of the lost subscriptions. A call to the membership will be forthcoming, in the form of an email that encourages members to encourage the maintenance and/or recapture of institutional subscriptions. Susan also spoke about the IRS audit experienced in the past year, and the Society's tax-exempt status was retained, and no penalties or levies were applied to the Society.

The Society is currently discussing the implications of the IRS audit, especially regarding the efforts on behalf of the Society to engage in political lobbying, which may threaten the Society's tax-exempt status. Finally, the Society received a clean bill of financial health from the independent accounting auditors. In sum, despite challenges, the Society continues to be financially sound.

ITEM #4 – NOMINATE CANDIDATES FOR SECRETARY AND TREASURER

The board identified candidates for the positions of SSSP Secretary and Treasurer. Glenn W. Muschert agreed to serve an additional term as Secretary and Susan M. Carlson agreed to serve an additional term as Treasurer, if elected.

ITEM #5 – REPORT FROM THE CHAIR OF THE NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE, INCLUDING NOMINATIONS FOR THE 2012 GENERAL ELECTION

Stephani Williams presented the report from the Nominations Committee, specifically the move to the new nomination process for generating the slate of nominations. In general, the new nominations process was described, including the advantages and disadvantages of the new process. The committee recommended that the committee be composed of members appointed by the Board. This would give continuity to the Committee membership, increasing institutional memory. Also, the committee recommended that the Council of Division Chairs could continue to be involved in the process of ranking the slate of suggested candidates.

ACTION: The Board approved that the Nominations Committee would be composed of four members appointed by the Board, and that the Nominations Committee would be chaired by the Chair of Special Division Chairs. Such a change will move forward as a By-Laws amendment. The 2012 members of the Nominations Committee include Stephen Morewitz, Marlese Durr, Joyce Bialik, and Shawn Cassiman.

ACTION: The Board accepted the committee report.

The record reflects that the new process of nominating candidates for the election, both the Board process and the Nominations Committee processes, functioned more smoothly than in past years.

ACTION: The Board approved the amended nominations list for the 2012 SSSP general election.

ITEM #6 – APPOINTMENT OF A BOARD MEMBER TO SERVE ON THE NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

As reported in ITEM #5 above, Marlese Durr was appointed to serve on the Nominations Committee.

ITEM #7 – REPORT FROM THE STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Mandy Frake-Mistak and Patrick O'Brien presented the report of the graduate student member meeting. The graduate students appear to be very satisfied with the opportunities to get involved and engaged with the Society. This reflects concrete efforts on the part of the Society to welcome graduate student members. The graduate student members suggested that extra funds generated by the division membership could potentially be used to fund student conference travel. The students reported on their continued efforts to improve the situation and engagement of graduate students.

ACTION: The Board approved the report from the Student Representatives.

ITEM #8 – PRESENTATION OF THE 2012 PROPOSED BUDGET

David Levinson presented the 2012 proposed budget. BFA committee projected a $39,386 deficit in the Society's 2012 budget. It is hoped that this trend improves, and the UC Press changes access to the subscriptions to Social Problems. The BFA Committee is working to identify funding for additional staffing in the Administrative Office, though at this time the BFA Committee cannot locate available funds for such a position. Discussion ensued of ways in which the food and beverage expenses might be economized. The BFA committee does not recommend the $1000 increase in the annual budget for the Lee Scholar Support Fund. The revenue is reduced due to decreasing interest rates, though the Treasurer has placed the Society's investments in socially responsible and secure places.

ACTION: The Board approved the 2012 budget as proposed.

ITEM #9 – REPORT FROM THE COMMITTEE ON COMMITTEES CHAIR

Paul C. Luken presented the report of the Committee on Committees. The committee provides the list of members selected for the appointed committees of the Society.

ACTION: The Board approved the report of the Committee on Committees and the slate of members for the next year's committee. Kathleen Lowney, Deborah Little, Tommy Horejes were added to the roster for the Accessibility Committee.

ITEM #10 – REPORT FROM THE EDITORIAL AND PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE CHAIR

Claire Renzetti presented the report of the Editorial and Publications Committee. Perhaps the largest issue concerned the placement of Social Problems on ProQuest. This situation has been remedied, though the recapture of lost institutional subscriptions is a priority for both the Society and UC Press. The journal's impact factor seems to have declined slightly, despite an increasing number of citations. This does not seem to be a significant concern, though it will be monitored. The committee encouraged the incoming editor of Social Problems to consider immediate online publication of manuscripts, and to consider one or two special issues during the three-year term. The committee recommended the addition of additional international members to the advisory editors of Social Problems. The committee suggested that the Society could consider sponsoring membership for new international members for one year, if they cannot otherwise afford the membership. The committee recommended the addition of the following statement to the Social Problems ScholarOne Manuscript Submission page: "The Editor will review each submission to see if it is appropriate for further review by external referees." The editor of Social Problems Forum is charged in the following year with the development of a policy for monitoring inappropriate content on the web forum. An important step in the process will be to consider best practices of other professional associations. Once completed, the policy will be forwarded to the Board for its approval. The committee presented the reprint policy, and an amendment to the policy proposed by the Board was that authors who are approved for reprints will be requested at the time of approval whether they would be willing to donate their royalties to the Society.

ACTION: The Board accepted the report and recommendations, including the stated reprint policy, of the Editorial and Publications Committee.

A. REPORT FROM THE INCOMING EDITOR OF SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Becky Pettit, incoming Editor of Social Problems reported on the journal. The transition to the University of Washington has moved smoothly, and the editorial office is functioning well in its new location. The editorial office has effective and valuable staff. The journal is operating within budget. Though the new editor has only been in place three months, the flow of manuscripts through the review process seems very similar to the flow in previous years, with an acceptance rate of approximately 8%.

B. PROPOSED 2011-2012 ADVISORY EDITORS

The editor outlined five associate editors: Kenneth (Andy) Andrews, Alexis Harris, Jennifer Jordan, Zaid Munson, and Abigail Saguy. In addition, there are 40 advisory members recommended, and 14 student editors recommended for the journal.

ACTION: The Board approved the Social Problems editor's report and the slate of associate editors, advisory editors, and student editors for Social Problems.

ITEM #11 – DISCUSS ANY BUSINESS MEETING REFERRALS OR MOTIONS

There were no motions or referrals from the business meeting.

ITEM #12 – DISCUSS RESOLUTIONS APPROVED AT THE BUSINESS MEETING (INCLUDING DISPOSITION)

Wendy Chapkis, on behalf of Carolyn Perrucci, discussed the resolutions from the business meeting. Resolution 1: Expression of Gratitude and Resolution 2: Labor Rights in the Public Sector were both approved. The full text appears in the minutes for the 2011 business meeting. Resolution 3: Sex Workers was tabled pending the strengthening of the resolution, though this non-passage of the resolution should not be construed as non-support for the rights of sex workers. The Board heard comments that the process of the resolutions proposal/approval should be streamlined so that resolutions should be approved in a timely way, else resolutions may potentially be untimely. In addition, specifying actions/activism related to resolutions and other issues of concern for the Society's membership.

ACTION: The Board created an Ad Hoc Committee on Social Action whose purview will be to explore social action and activism, including identifying actions for responding to social issues of concern to the Society's membership. The committee would be chaired by the Vice President. The following members will be asked to serve for the 2011-12 term: Kristen Budd, Jenny Heine-man, Louis Esparza, Luis Fernandez, and Heather MacIndoe.

ITEM #13 – UNFINISHED BUSINESS FROM 2011

There was no unfinished business.

ITEM #14 – NEW BUSINESS

On behalf of Michele Paludi, Michele Koontz conveyed a request from the International Coalition Against Sexual Harassment to partner with SSSP for their 2012 conference.

ACTION: The Board approved a request from the International Coalition Against Sexual Harassment to partner for the 2012 meetings.

ITEM #15 – ADJOURNMENT OF THE 2011-2012 BOARD

There being no further business, the Board was adjourned by President Wendy Simonds.
